THE TURKS BEAT A HOT RETREAT.

Successful Bombardment by the Greek Warships of Villages on the Gulf of Salonica.

EDHEM PASHA IS ALARMED

He Is Fearful Now of Being Attacked From the Rear.

OSMAN PASHA STARTS OUT

The Hero of Plevna Placed in Command of the Troops.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

ATHENS, April 23.—9 A. M.—After the bombardment of Katrina on the Gulf of Salonica by the Greek squadron had put to flight two battalions of Turks and the inhabitants of that place the Greek fleet landed a detachment and found the Turks had left behind immense stores of provisions destined for the armies of Edhem Pasha.

These valuable stores had been left unprotected in the belief by the Turks that the blockade of Greece by the fleets of the Powers would prevent the Greek fleet from attacking Turkish towns in the Gulf of Salonica which are near the railroad to Salonica and which have been used as a point to land stores for the Turkish army and forward them to the front.

The capture of these towns, not to mention the loss of stores, places serious difficulty in the path of Edhem Pasha and it is stated here as soon as the Turkish commander-in-chief heard the news of the capture of Platamona and Katrina, he dispatched 10,000 men towards the coast of Macedonia, fearing a flank attack from the Gulf of Salonica.

The Greek fleet in returning from the capture of Katrina bombarded the port of Litchora.

A dispatch from Larissa says yesterday after the Greeks fortified Mayreychori, to which place they retreat after evacuating Nezeros, they occupied Ratzina and Heganla.

ADVICES FROM CORFU.

CORFU, April 23.—The western Greek squadron of warships suspended the bombardment of Prevesa, the Turkish position north of the entrance to the Gulf of Arta and left this morning for Santi Quaratta.

On arrival there the war vessels began bombarding the Turkish block house.

A TALE OF VICTORY.

The Greek Minister of Foreign Affairs Issues a Report.

By Associated Press to the Tribune.

LONDON April 23.—The Greek Charge d'Affairs here received a dispatch dated Athens today, giving the exact situation on the Thessalian frontier from the Greek standpoint.

It is as follows: "In Thessaly in the direction of Revenl and Boughazl our forces have penetrated into Turkish territory and advanced towards Damasle.

"All attacks of the enemy have been repulsed in the direction of Gritzovali.

"Our army occupied a strong position at Mati, where there has been fighting since yesterday. Turkish attacks have been repulsed.

"The Greeks had to retire from Nezeros, falling back on the bank of the Derchi, a strong position, which they are now defending.

"In Epirus our army is advancing and has captured Fort Imaret, Fillippiada and several villages.

"The Greeks have also occupied Sulagora, capturing three cannon, a number of guns and a quantity of ammunition and provisions.

"The army is now advancing northward.

(Signed) "SPOUZES,
"Minister of Foreign Affairs."

According to a dispatch from Athens fighting occurred in the olive groves near Prevessa, between Turks and native Christians.

The Greek forces, it is added, while on the way to Filippiada, passed a number of charred corpses.

The inhabitants of Lakka and Samarina have risen against the Greeks and welcomed the Turks with enthusiasm.

GENERALS CHANGED.

The Turks Are Dissatisfied With the Work of the Leaders.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 23.—(Delayed in transmission.)—It is stated here that one of the Turkish brigades which has been pushed forward on the plains of Larissa has been unable to advance further owing to floods caused by rains and the consequent rise of the River Salambria.

Edhem Pasha telegraphed asking for the immediate dispatch of pontoons to enable the troops to cross the river, the Greeks having blown up the bridges.

These reports had a very depressing effect here when taken into conjunction with the formidable resistance which the Turks have met with around Tyenavo.

Afternoon—An additional force of Dedifis, or army reserves, has been called out to reinforce the Turkish troops operating against the Greeks.

They consist of the Koniah brigade from Ceraria, a delegation from Samaria belonging to the third army corps; three brigades from the fourth army corps, and a division of the fifth army corps.

These men total up seventy-two additional battalions, troops numering 50,400 men.

It is now definitely announced that Osman Pasha, the hero of Plevna, has been appointed commander-in-chief of the Turkish army having its headquarters at Elassona.

Edhem Pasha has been recalled.

In addition Saad Edin Pasha has been appointed to the command of the Turkish army having its headquarters at Janina, replacing Ahmed Hifzi Pasha, who is also recalled.

The new commanders start for their posts this evening.

A TURKISH DEFEAT.

The News of an Engagement Is Received in Berlin.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

BERLIN, April 23.—The Frankfort Zeitung publishes a dispatch from Constantinople dated midnight, Thursday, saying news of a Turkish defeat in Greece has just reached that city.

The dispatch adds that Osman Pasha, the hero of Plevna, has been dispatched to the frontier.

POSITION OF THE POWERS.

They Will Interfere as Soon as Their Aid Is Asked.

By Associated Press to the Tribune.

BRUSSELS, April 23.—Le Nord today announces that all the Powers have given adhesion to the note of the Russian Minister for Foreign Affairs, Count Mouravieffa, assuring the Greeks and Turks of the friendly interference of the Powers in the present struggle as soon as it is asked by either side.

TIED UP A TRAIN.

The Unemployed Are Causing Much Trouble Up Country.

AN INVASION OF LODI

Local Authorities Unable to Cope With the Visitors.

LAWLESSNESS IS RAMPANT.

The Railroad Refuses to Carry Them for Nothing.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

STOCKTON, April 23.—The 270 men who were sent to this city by Mayor Phelan of San Francisco, en route for the East, have reached Lodi.

They got tired of walking and refused to proceed further.

Last night they tried to take possession of a freight train for Sacramento, but were frustrated by the railroad people, who had the train steam by without stopping.

This morning they were more successful, and climbed upon the freight which was to have pulled out at 9:30.

Some got on top of the cars and others hung to the sides.

The train men, acting under the instructions of the agent, refused to take the train out.

The unemployed refused to get off the cars.

The local authorities were invoked, but consisted of only two constables, and they could do nothing with the men.

The train is still there, and the men are also firm in their determination.

They say they will stay there all summer.

They have men begging in the town and practically own the village.

A FLORAL FEAST.

A Magnificent Pageant in the Streets of Los Angeles.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 23.—The high wind this morning somewhat marred the pleasure of the multitude which viewed the fiesta attractions, but the day was bright and the flower parade in the afternoon proved to be one of the most charming features of the celebration.

The display of flowers and the variety and profusion of the designs probably has never been equaled before in any part of the world.

The water carnival at West Lake will be held tonight.

RUNNING A BLUFF.

Two Amateur Detectives Fall Into the Officers' Hands.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 23.—Two amateur detectives, M. Burnett and Frank Adams, fell under the observation of a policeman early this morning and were arrested.

They had disguised themselves with false beards, were armed with unloaded pistols of antique patterns and were encamped in front of an O'Farrell street lodging house.

At the City Prison they exhibited stars, and said they had been employed to collect information of a personal nature by a woman.

The amateur sleuths were booked for carrying concealed weapons, but this morning, on the recommendation of Chief Lees, Justice of the Peace Kerrigan allowed them to go free.

WHERE IS JOHN BRADBURY

A Fishy Story That Officials Are Called on to Investigate.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 23.—Mayor Phelan received a letter today from N. S. Wood, solicitor, of High Wycombe, England, containing inquiries as to John Bradbury. Mr. Wood states that he was consulted by a Mrs. Stevens and a Mrs. Rackstraw, who reside in the county of Buckinghamshire, and who represent themselves to be relatives of Bradbury. Their interest in him was aroused by a story that recently appeared in the London Daily Telegraph, a copy of which was inclosed in the letter. The article is as follows:

AN ENGLISHMAN 127 YEARS OLD.

(Dalziel's Cablegram.)

SAN FRANCISCO, March 21.—John Bradbury, a native of Buckinghamshire, England, has been discovered here in a dying condition. He has authentic records to show that he was born in 1770, and is therefore 127 years old. He arrived in New York in the year Queen Victoria was crowned, and

DENISON RETURNS.

He Chats About Political Affairs at the Capital.

STILL IN THE MINT FIGHT

His Candidacy for the Post Office Simply a "Rumor."

A CALL ON JUDGE M'KENNA

President McKinley Invaded by Hosts of Office Seekers.

Senator Eli Denison has returned from his trip to the East and is brimful of information regarding the status of things political.

"I stopped over at Chicago and passed five days at Washington, but I did not go on to New York," he said to a Tribune man this morning. "I was only gone two weeks altogether, so you can see I had little time to spare.

"The stories that I have withdrawn from the Mint fight and am now a candidate for postmaster of Oakland are not true. The Mint matter is not settled yet, and I am still a candidate. Mr. Hanna told me that the nomination will not be made for about two months. The only way in which I can see my name was associated with the postoffice was as follows: I was talking to Mr. Hilborn and asked him if he had picked out any one for the place. He said 'No, and I won't do so for about two years.' The names of A. W. Bishop, W. H. Friend and S. J. Taylor are mentioned for the office.

"I did not see either Judge Waymire or Mr. Leach, although I understood they were about the Capital. There are lots of Californians there, and among them I saw George Knight, George Hazelton and Tom Clunie.

"As regards the political prospects of the coast candidates, I can say little. It is a certainty, though, that both Spear and Waymire will be provided for. McLaughlin is fighting Spear hard, but he cannot down him. Just what Waymire will get no one seems to know. The Circuit Judgeship matter was not much discussed.

"I called on Attorney-General McKenna and found him feeling well, though he is being worked to death. The cares of his department are very heavy, and he cannot possibly keep up the pace he has started.

"I had the pleasure of a chat with the President. He is looking well and happy, despite the fact that he is bothered by an army of office-seekers. He knew me, and laughed as Senator Perkins remarked that I was the man who had sent him the live eagle.

"The White House is simply invaded by office-seekers. They come in droves and the throng is almost as great as on an inauguration day. The President is very easily seen, for he comes right out in the reception room and mingles with the callers, shaking hands and chatting here and there.

"It is no joke to stay in Washington nowadays. In the first class hotels they charge $7 or $8 a day for room and board, and for the suite of rooms at the Shoreham that I engaged for my son and myself they charged $10 a day without board. Restaurant living is high and what would cost about 90 cents in San Francisco cannot be got for less than $1.75.

"Washington, though, is a charming residence city. One thing that impresses the visitor is that the electric cars are operated by under-ground wires, the trolley being run from the car through a slot in the track. This does away with the poles and other unpleasant accessories of the general system.

"The new Library building is a splendid structure. It cost $6,000,000 and is about ready for occupancy. The exterior is granite with a huge dome covered with gold and the inside is all white and blue marble. It is about as large as the State Capitol at Sacramento.

"I enjoyed my trip thoroughly and was much interested in the sessions of Congress. Secretary of State Sherman is a busy man, and the cares of public life are beginning to tell on him, for he has aged a good deal in the last few years. I did not see Justice Field and all I know about his probable retirement is what I read in the newspapers."

HE FEARED NEITHER GOD NOR MAN.

Frank Kloss Feels the Clutch of the Hangman's Rope and, as He Promised, Died Game.

NOT A VESTIGE OF FEAR

He Smoked a Cigarette When the Death Warrant Was Brought.

FAREWELLS TO HIS FRIENDS

He Nodded and Smiled as the Black Cap Was Put on.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, April 24.—Frank Cooney Kloss was hanged promptly at 10:30 this morning for the murder of William Deady over two years ago.

Neither the brother nor mother of Kloss has been at the prison since yesterday, and the execution was witnessed only by the prison officials, physicians and newspaper men.

As Kloss had boasted, he died game for his brutal and cowardly murder of his victim.

He was cool to the last.

Death was almost instantaneous.

At twenty minutes past 10 Warden Hale went to the cell of the condemned man to read the death warrant.

The prisoner was talking to Father Lagan, his spiritual adviser, at the same time smoking a cigarette.

He told Warden Hale not to read the warrant.

The warden asked him if he waived the reading.

"Yes," he replied.

The guards at once strapped Kloss's hands to his sides and put a leather belt about his ankles.

Fathers Lagan and Eagan stood one on each side of him.

TO THE GALLOWS.

The guards grouped themselves about and the march to the gallows was begun.

The priests chanted the prayers for the dying.

It was exactly half-past ten o'clock when Kloss was placed upon the trap.

Father Lagan stepped forward and requested the attention of the spectators.

He said that Kloss had asked him to deny the assertion which appeared lately in some of the newspapers regarding the brutal treatment of his mother by the murderer.

Father Lagan asked the newspapers to do justice to a man who denied with dying breath the story of his unfilial conduct.

When the clergyman concluded, the rope was put upon Kloss's neck and the black cap drawn over his head.

Through it all the man was perfect master of himself.

Just before the cap was pulled over his eyes he recognized Chief Jailor Sattler of the county jail. He smiled and nodded as though he was passing a friend on the street.

His eye then lighted upon another acquaintance, to whom he bowed.

The black cloth shut the world from his gaze forever.

When everything was adjusted, Warden Hale raised his hand, the three men hidden in the box cut the ropes, the trap fell, and the body of Frank Kloss was shot into the air.

There was not a quiver of pain or the slightest struggle.

The rope swayed for a moment and then the body hung like the pendulum of a clock stopped.

Dr. Lawlor, the prison surgeon, and his assistants for the occasion, Doctors Wickham and Jones of San Rafael, and Mattner, Cook and Douglas of San Francisco, felt the pulses and listened for the respiration.

All action in the body ceased at the end of twelve minutes.

A second after the trap opened Kloss was insensible and practically dead.

The physicians, all of whom have attended the previous executions at the prison, are unanimous that this was the most successful hanging of the series.

There have been in all fourteen executions at San Quentin.

THE STORY OF THE CRIME.

The story of the murder is brief and brutal. Kloss was drunk when he went into a Hayes Valley saloon, San Francisco, where he found Deady asleep with his head thrown back, exposing a tempting display of unprotected neck.

Kloss walked up to Deady, who he knew slightly, and shook him.

Deady did not wake, whereupon Kloss pulled a knife, and saying to the saloon-keeper, "I'll wake the —— up," drew his knife across the man's throat. The jugular vein was severed, and Deady lived but a few hours. This occurred April 18, 1895.

The trial in Department 12 of the Superior Court resulted in a verdict of guilty, and Judge Bahrs pronounced the death sentence on Kloss on the 7th of December, 1895.

Shortly after the verdict had been rendered the foreman of the jury, a citizen named Leipsic, made an extraordinary statement. He said that he had voted for the death penalty under a misapprehension, not knowing that the absence of recommendation made the death sentence inevitable. Leipsic even made an affidavit to that effect, and the defendant's attorneys used it as the basis of a plea to have the judgment set aside and a new trial ordered. Judge Bahrs, however, denied the motion on the ground that a juror was not permitted to impeach his own verdict.

From this judgment and order Kloss appealed to the Supreme Court. That tribunal decided that Judge Bahrs was right, and affirmed the judgment. Judge Bahrs having been assigned to a civil department the duty of re-sentencing Kloss devolved upon Judge Cook.

Attorney Wilson made a motion for a new trial, but Deputy District Attorney Hosmer objected and the request was denied by the court. When Kloss was asked if he had anything to say why the judgment of the law should not be pronounced against him he faced the Judge in a dogged, sullen manner and in a fierce tone fairly hissed:

"Yes; I've lots to say. But what's the use? It doesn't do any good.

"But I would like to say that I've not been treated with justice by the District Attorney in this case. I had a most unfair trial. And the foreman of the jury swore to something he didn't know he was swearing to. Besides, the jury wasn't polled properly after the verdict was given.

"I think it is high time that the Government and the public at large did away with juries altogether, and that a man could be tried by a judge. Then perhaps he could get a fair trial.

"But these juries!" and here Kloss grew excited and his voice rose, "ornary old two-dollar-and-a-half-a-day bums; that's what they are! —— perjurers, ready to swear a man's life away or give it away on a minute's notice.

"That's all I have to say. I've nothing against you, Mr. Judge; and I thank you for your treatment of me. Now I'm ready for you."

Judge Cook then pronounced the sentence of death, to take effect on Friday, April 23d. Judge Cook looked earnestly at the prisoner and said: "May God have mercy on your soul."

"And on my enemies, too," said Kloss, as he turned away and held out his hands to be gyved.

As Kloss was conducted from the room he confided to Chief Deputy Clerk Harry Piper that he would like to get one lick on the nose of Assistant District Attorney Hosmer, who conducted the prosecution. He laughed at what he considered his own witticism in this regard, and walked smilingly down the corridor toward the iron cells in the basement of the City Hall.

A few days ago when the crippled and aged mother of the condemned man went to San Quentin to bid him good-by his curses and foul words shouted at her shocked the death watch as few incidents have power to do.

The House at Washington Notices the Death of Holman.

Representatives to Attend the Grant Monument Exercises.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—The desk of the late Judge Holman was today covered with a black pall of mourning, upon which were strewn lilies of the valley and hyacinths. Immediately after the reading of the journal, Bland, Democrat, of Missouri, offered a resolution relative to the suits to foreclose the first mortgage on the Union Pacific Railway, and calling on the Attorney General for information as to what steps had been taken to protect the interests of the Government, so modified as to strike out the clause directing the Speaker to appoint immediately a Committee on Pacific Railroads.

The House adopted a resolution for the appointment of a committee of twenty-five members, of which the Speaker shall be chairman, to attend the Grant tomb exercises next Tuesday.

The House also asked for three days' adjournment next week, with the understanding that no business shall be transacted.

THE TURKS BEAT A HOT RETREAT.

forcing back the Greeks from their position on the heights above Turnavo and are now preparing for a final advance on Larissa.

About 4 o'clock the inhabitants of Turnavo could be seen leaving the town and retreating in wild confusion along the Larissa road. The Greek troops fell back in good order and occupied with four batteries of artillery the low hill between Tyrnavo and Larissa. There they prepared to offer further resistance.

While they were deploying their guns and taking the range several battalions of Turkish infantry with five batteries of artillery moved slowly down the slopes of Milouna Pass toward the plain. Their object was to support the forces of cavalry engaged in making a reconnaissance.

Hitherto the ground had been too uneven to employ cavalry, but now that we are gaining the famous plains of Thessaly, the Turkish mounted men will be kept hard at work. They are well mounted, keen and eager to bear their full share of the defense of the country. Indeed, the spirit of our troops is above all reproach.

Presently our artillery halted, unlimbered upon the Greeks and a vigorous artillery duel commenced. The spectacle was a magnificent one from the heights which seemed to have been expressly designed to serve as an amphitheatre.

We looked down on the battle raging at our feet and were close to Marshal Edhem Pasha and his staff, while in all directions the hills were crowded with Turkish soldiers, gazing wistfully at the fight. The Marshal and his officers were of the opinion that Larissa had been virtually taken now that Milouna Pass was in the hands of their men. Edhem Pasha's plans have hitherto been crowned with complete success.

Below us were serpentine lines of bayonets glinting in the bright sun and standing out from the deep green of the plains and dull brown of the bare, rocky hill sides. They moved with even cadence toward Tyrnavo. From the mouth of the guns in action below came jets of fire and spurts of white smoke or grey dust, as the recoil of the weapons tore up the ground. Here and there shells were bursting. Few reached our men, however, as the distance was too great and we suffered but little, though I saw a few men knocked over by bursting schrapnell and there were several narrow escapes. More than once a shell exploded within a very few yards of our regiments without doing any harm, but splinters and schrapnell have come uncomfortably near. The hill from which the Greeks are firing lies about half way between this place and Larissa.

Soon the Turkish batteries limbered up, finding that the shells dropped short, and moved up, and then opened up again. Its fire was better directed than that of the Greeks. Our infantry gave its support and commenced a furious fire, to which the Greeks replied.

The aim of Edhem Pasha is not as yet to fight a decisive battle. He has a strategic success of the utmost importance by holding the Greeks in front, while in lines parallel to our advance his other columns move forward by Damasi or Tyrnavo. He has also ascertained the strength of the Greeks.

"Our troops are now fast converging on Tyrnavo, and we shall probably occupy the town tonight. From the position which we now occupy, Larissa with its houses is embosomed amid the green trees and glistening in the sun, as I send this dispatch.

OFF TO THE WAR.

A Band of Greek Patriots Set Forth From Chicago

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

CHICAGO, April 23.—Two hundred Greeks said good-bye to Chicago last evening, and amid scenes of the wildest enthusiasm started for the seat of war in their native country. Before another week has passed it is altogether probable that Chicago will not have a score of Greeks within her limits. Already arrangements are under way for the departure of another party of 200 Grecian patriots who will soon leave.

The little church on Kenzie street was crowded with Greeks whose excited manner told of the strains under which they were laboring. The church was the place of final preparation for the long journey. It is here that Father Phiambolis, the priest in charge, has been reading to them daily accounts in the newspapers of the progress of the war in their fatherland, and it was from his lips that they received a parting blessing and heard a prayer offered up for their safe return to their adopted country.

Professors and students at the University of Chicago have taken up the battle cry of the struggling Greeks. Due to the enthusiasm which developed yesterday on the campus, influential members of the faculty resolved to furnish an opportunity for a public indorsement of the Grecian cause by arranging for a mass meeting to be held this evening. Among the propositions to be considered at the meeting will be a plan to devise methods for raising money for the transportation of Greek volunteers to Athens.

NEWS FROM TERRELL.

He Notifies Secretary Sherman of Osman Pasha's Departure.

By Associated Press to the Tribune.

WASHINGTON, April 23. — Secretary Sherman has received a cablegram from Minister Terrell at Constantinople under date of yesterday, stating that Osman Pasha, the old hero of the Turkish defense at Plevna, left Constantinople last night to assume command of the Turkish army in the field. The cablegram is regarded here as significant of some change of plans on the part of the Turks.

Representative Maguire of California today introduced a resolution in the House declaring that the war between Turkey and Greece was a war between the Moslem and the Christian civilization, and directing that the sympathy of the United States be extended to Greece with the hope that her struggle may be successful.

The resolution was referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs, but as that committee is not appointed no action can be taken at present.

SEEKING BURIED TREASURE.

Thomas Pacheco Believes He Can Unearth a Spanish Hoard.

Another fortune hunter is searching Oakland for hidden treasures of old Spanish days. He is Thomas Pacheco and claims to have been told of a cached hoard by a conscience-stricken Spaniard who is dying in a rural hut near Monterey.

Pacheco believes the money, which is supposed to be the fruits of a robbery, is buried on Clay, between First and Seventh streets, under a spreading oak which has since been laid low. Attorney Garrity has been retained to protect the treasure-hunter in his search, and inquiries have been made at the Street Superintendent's office as to the right to dig up streets.

Pacheco is a son of the late Fernando Pacheco of Contra Costa.

Four or five years ago some buried treasure was unearthed by house-movers at the corner of Tenth and Clay streets.

NOT TO BE AVENGED.

Those Charged With Lenz's Murder Have Been Acquitted.

By Associated Press to the Tribune.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—United States Consul Borgehos at Ezeroum, Turkey, has reported to the State Department that the Turkish court there that has been trying by default the Kurds and Armenians charged with the murder of Young Lenz, the American bicyclist, while on his tour around the world awheel, has acquitted the accused.

The magistrate found that there was not sufficient evidence to warrant the conviction of the accused persons and dismissed the charges, a matter of small moment after all, considering the fact that none of the accused had been found guilty by the authorities.

TEACHERS' SALARIES.

Supt. McClymonds Sheds Some Light on the Mixed Subject.

In regard to the fear expressed by many of the public school teachers that their June salaries might not be paid, Superintendent of Schools McClymonds has the following to say:

"The teachers are paid by the school year of forty-two weeks. The idea that the whole month's salary will not be paid is incorrect. If there is a deficiency in the school fund the teachers will be paid as much as the apportionment allows. If the schools are closed a week sooner than was expected, a week's salary only will be deducted, provided that there is enough in the fund to pay the salaries up to that time."

A PENSION LAW DEFECT.

Are High School Teachers Eligible to Its Benefits?

The Question Now Being Looked Into by the District Attorney.

The question has been raised whether the teachers' pension law will be applicable to High School teachers in Oakland.

The bill provides that "all public school teachers of California" may take advantage of the measure. When a teacher joins, he or she files an application with the Board of Education and then the Secretary of the Board must designate on the face of her monthly warrant the amount to be paid into the fund.

The County Treasurer is made custodian of the money and he alone can handle it.

The salaries of the Oakland High School teachers are paid from city funds and the question arises has the City Treasurer, who pays the warrants, the right to take out the monthly amount for the pension fund? The City Treasurer is not mentioned in the act at all, and a grave doubt exists as to whether the High School teachers can have their contributions received at all.

They can, if they desire, collect the money and turn it over to the County Treasurer. Mr. Sanford is willing to receive it, but the legality of such a proceeding is doubted. For the same reason, it is questionable whether the pensioned High School teachers can draw benefits from the County Treasurer's receipts.

In the case of the Union High Schools the matter is different, for the salaries in those institutions are paid by the county.

Miss Wythe, of the High School, brought the question to the attention of County Superintendent of Schools Garlick and he has referred it to District Attorney Snook.

A FIGHT FOR A BABY.

W. F. Barker's Grievance Against the Alameda Home

W. F. Baker has a grievance against the Alameda Home for Friendless Children and intends to appeal to the courts for protection. His wife and baby went to the home recently where, it is alleged, the former was to assist the matron. Soon after their arrival, both were stricken down with measles. The baby is now at the point of death and the father declares that the child has not only been neglected but it has been kept there contrary to his wishes. He will get out a writ of habeas corpus in order to obtain possession of the infant.

He makes some sensational allegations against the managers of the home. He declares that they have kept his wife and baby contrary to his wishes and, although he has provided a comfortable home for them on Franklin street, the matron, Mrs. Adams, has refused to allow them to depart. He called at the home last night but was refused admittance to see his baby boy, a'though the child was then believed to be dying.

"The matron said I had insulted the management of the home by sending a magnetic healer to treat my baby," said Baker today. "I never sent any healer and knew nothing about any such visit. I wanted to see my sick baby but they barred me out for that reason. I myself am a magnetic healer but I had intrusted the care of the child to Dr. Anna Wightman and I feel sure that she has done the best she could for the baby. The child is dying because it was neglected in the early stage of the disease and this was the fault of the matron."

A DEFENSE OF DURRANT.

Comments by One Who Does Not Think the Trial Was Fair.

A Slight Analysis of Some of the Principal Points of Evidence.

Editor Tribune—Sir:—I quote from your editorial column of yesterday: "The American love of fair play is counteracting the efforts of those who are trying to hurry Durrant to the gallows. The persecution business has been overdone and is bringing about a reaction of sentiment in the condemned man's favor.

For one, Mr. Editor, I heartily concur. From the day that Durrant was taken into custody as the suspected murderer of Minnie Williams, up to the day of his conviction, the press of San Francisco allied with the detective force, prejudged him guilty, and by every resource known to journalism, fair, foul and otherwise persecuted him, and molded public sentiment against him. Such a spirit of rivalry was engendered among the "pencil pushers" as to who should secure for his paper the most startling and original story bearing on the case, that in many instances columns of stuff were published as scoops that proved to be pure fabrications, wholly figments of the superheated imagination of the ambitious knight of the faber.

To my mind, the Cunningham episode should have been sufficient cause for that jury of supposedly intelligent, unbiased, fair-minded men to have reflected well and long upon the influence of the press of San Francisco exerted upon the minds of many of the witnesses for the prosecution.

I happened to witness a meeting between that female reporter and Prosecuting Attorney Barnes in the court of the Palace Hotel one day, when she was figuring so prominently in the case. They were both considerably agitated, and repaired to the grill-room. I have since often regretted that I did not do a little gratuitous detective work at that time. It might have come to my hand to pen a real true story as a side light on a dark passage that ultimately led to the conviction of Durrant.

Sir, I would not undertake to go into the question of the guilt or innocence of the condemned young man, but I unhesitatingly aver it was my belief that in the opinion of the majority of thinking people the newspapers of San Francisco rendered it impossible for him to receive a fair, impartial trial such as any man would expect to receive and would be entitled to receive, were he charged with so revolting a crime.

Not for a moment questioning the honesty, the purity of motive or the earnest conviction of the guilt of the accused on the part of the jury individually and collectively, yet I have ever been of the opinion that not one of those twelve men had the temerity to so much as intimate that he had reasons to doubt. So intensely bitter was the feeling toward Durrant, and so zealously had the San Francisco press pandered to that feeling, it was as much as a man's life was worth to say or do anything counter thereto in an honest endeavor to secure a fair administration of the law, and a meteing out of justice.

I am not a lawyer, Mr. Editor, but I lay claim to an average modicum of common sense, and did I have the space at my disposal would take up certain essential links as they were forged in that chain of circumstantial evidence, and by critical analysis think those could be discovered to the mind of any unprejudiced person the fatal weakness in such links, due to the questionable manner in which the material out of which they were made was first had, and latterly shaped up. But abler minds, and more deft artisans at the process of unwelding false joints in such a chain, having failed to make any impression upon the majority of the learned, august gentlemen who constitute the highest State tribunal (albeit they are but men and acknowledged fallible.) What profiteth it for one not skilled in the craft to wield the hammer of logic and the cold chisel of analysis, however good the chances that he might discover the faulty joining of the two ends of a link now and then. No chain is stronger than the weakest link; break one, and it ceases to be a chain until that link is re-welded or a new one supplied and the connection made between the two connecting links on either side. In the humble judgment of this correspondent, from a dispassionate, unprejudicial, common sense point of view, there are more links than one in that marvelous chain forged about Durrant, that will not bear the hard straining of critical, rational analysis. What I could advance in support of this position would fill columns of your paper.

I will only advert in closing, to the very unquestionable and reprehensible method of identification that was employed by the detectives when the schoolmates of Blanche Lamont who claimed to have seen her in the company of Durrant, were required to identify him.

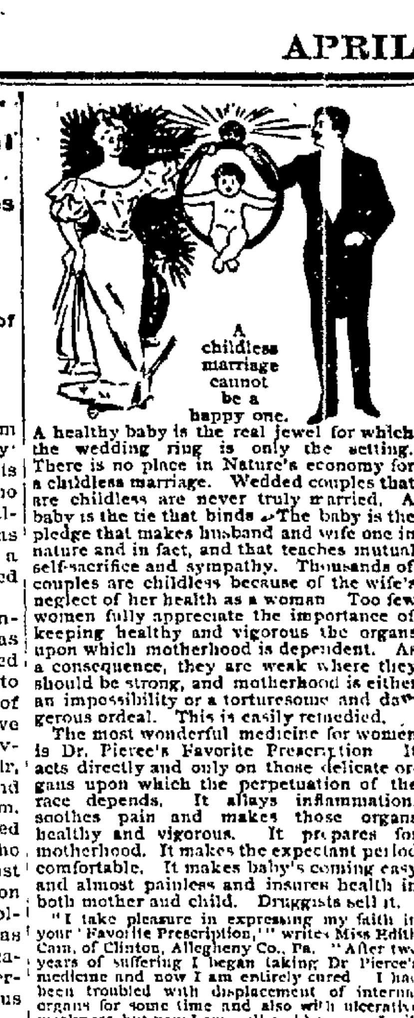
It will be remembered that Durrant was in custody in the office of the Chief of Police. His likeness had been the day before published in the papers, with the positive statement that he was the murderer. Of course all of those girls had seen that likeness and knew that they were going to look at the original, who, according to a united press, was the undoubted fiend. They were walked into the room where Durrant was, and were asked if that, (pointing to him) was the person they saw on the car with Blanche Lamont.

Now, how should this identification have been had to conform to common-sense, humane ideas of propriety, and with due regard to justice? My view of this very vital preliminary matter was at the time and yet is, that there should have been at least half a dozen young men of about the stature of Durrant, coaoted and hatted as he was, sitting together in one room with Durrant. Each one of those girls should have been taken separately into the presence of those seven young men and required to point out the one whom she saw with Blanche Lamont. The girl after making her identification should not have been allowed to see her companions who were yet to identify. This method should have been pursued until all had made their identification. Should they all have pointed out the same young man, this would have been actual, honest and trustworthy identification. In order to have made it the more thorough and just there should not have been published any likeness (assuming that it was a likeness) of Durrant without publishing the likeness of others who were to be used for the purpose of identifying the real suspect.

Had such a course been pursued, and those three girls should have pointed out Durrant as the person whom they saw with Blanche, then there could not have been a shadow of doubt about his identity insofar as their knowledge went.

As it was,—well, it always seemed to me that the detectives had but one desire, and that was to fasten the guilt on Durrant, despite the fact that one of their number—when more honest than discreet, told his chief that when the belfry was first entered there were well defined tracks in the dust on the floor and on the stairs, such tracks of a size that would be made by a number 8 or 9 shoe. Durrant wore a number 6 shoe. But pardon me, I am prone to trespass.

J. M. JONES.



A healthy baby is the real jewel for which the wedding ring is only the setting. There is no place in Nature's economy for a childless marriage. Wedded couples that are childless are never truly married. A baby is the tie that binds. The baby is the pledge that makes husband and wife one in nature and in fact, and that teaches mutual self-sacrifice and sympathy. Thousands of couples are childless because of the wife's neglect of her health as a woman. Too few women fully appreciate the importance of keeping healthy and vigorous the organs upon which motherhood is dependent. As a consequence, they are weak where they should be strong, and motherhood is either an impossibility or a torturesome and dangerous ordeal. This is easily remedied.

The most wonderful medicine for women is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It acts directly and only on those delicate organs upon which the perpetuation of the race depends. It allays inflammation, soothes pain and makes those organs healthy and vigorous. It prepares for motherhood. It makes the expectant period comfortable. It makes baby's coming easy and almost painless and insures health in both mother and child. Druggists sell it.

"I take pleasure in expressing my faith in your 'Favorite Prescription,'" writes Miss Edith Cain, of Clinton, Allegheny Co., Pa. "After two years of suffering I began taking Dr. Pierce's medicine and now I am entirely cured. I had been troubled with displacement of internal organs for some time and also with ulcerative weakness, but now I am well and happy. I will cheerfully recommend Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription to all invalid ladies."

The profit side of life is health. The balance is written in the rich, red, pure blood of health. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation and make the blood rich and pure. They never gripe. By druggists

LITERARY NOTES.

The New York Critic of April 3rd devotes seven pages to an account of the dinner given in honor of the veteran poet, Richard Henry Stoddard, by the Authors' Club, on March 25th, at the Hotel Savoy, New York. It prints in full the opening speech of Mr. E. C. Stedman, who presided; the poem recited by Mr. Stoddard, which is called "A Curtain Call," and is typical of the man; part of a speech by Mr. R. W. Gilder, who called attention to some of the poet's noblest verse, and the messages of regret and congratulation from American and foreign authors who were unable to be present, together with poems in honor of the bard by Edith M. Thomas and James Whitcomb Riley. The report is worthy of the occasion, which marks a mile-stone in the progress of American letters. An excellent portrait-group of Mr. Stoddard, Mrs. Stoddard (who was present at the dinner and shared her husband's honors), and their son, Mr. Lorimer Stoddard (the successful dramatizer of Mr. Hardy's "Tess") is printed with the account.

We are glad to learn that the Macmillan Company has in preparation a cheaper edition of Miss Kingsley's Travels in West Africa, Congo Francais, Corisco and Cameroons. This book, whose author is a niece of the Rev. Charles Kingsley, is one of the brightest books of travel ever published, and has attracted a great deal of notice. In England it is already in its fifth edition, here its price, $6.50, has made it move more slowly than will be the case when it is issued in a less costly form.

No series of articles that Scribner has published has attracted more comment from successful men than that on "The Conduct of Great Businesses." Letters are received every day in praise of the articles. The fourth in the series (May issue) on "The Working of a Bank," by Charles D. Lanier, is one of the most effective, because the subject is so little known, even by business men. Great financiers have furnished the author with valuable information. The pictures are from famous New York bank buildings.

Caused Her Father's Death.

Mrs. Ollie May Rourke, the bride of five days, who went insane while on her wedding tour, but later recovered, has again been committed to the asylum, and it is feared she will never recover. Her father, H. B. Miller, a resident of Williams, Colusa County, was seized with a hemorrhage on learning the sad news and he died suddenly.

St. Mary's Athletes.

The annual field day of St. Mary's College will be held on May 8th. The event of considerable interest will be the tug-of-war between the classes of '98 and '99. Frank Silva will captain the former, while W. J. McCarthy has charge of the latter. A banquet will be served in the evening.

Reliance and Kangaroo.

The Reliance Athletic Club baseball nine will play the Australian Club tomorrow afternoon in Central Park. Game will be called at 3 o'clock. The game scheduled between the University of California and the Australians has been called off.

THE HUGHES CONCERT.

A Large Audience Warmly Greets the New Society.

An Interesting Programme With the Names of the Club Members.

The second concert of the season given by the Hughes Club, packed the First Unitarian Church to the doors last night. The audience was decidedly a select one and the excellent programme presented received well-merited praise.

There were no floral decorations of any kind, but the sixty-five pretty ladies who compose the club proved sufficient embellishment, dressed as they were in light-colored gowns of delicate hue.

The chorus, under the leadership of D. P. Hughes, showed much improvement since the first concert. The precision and shading of the numbers was particularly good. Barring too much volume in the first soprano, the parts were well balanced and the singers showed the results of careful training.

The first number, the "Spinning Chorus," was not as well rendered as some of the others. A slight nervousness was possibly responsible for two much force from some and not enough from others.

In the "Bobolink's Song" which followed, the vocalists were more at their ease and an excellent rendition was the result.

Mrs. C. A. Allardyce's songs were well received. She gave two numbers, the last one being more to the liking of the audience.

Llewellyn Hughes received quite an ovation. He is undoubtedly a very promising vocalist. The young man shows a thorough knowledge of his instrument and is certainly worthy of more recognition than he receives. He was obliged to respond to two encores.

"The Birth of the Opal," by the club, with a 'cello obligato by Frank Howard, was one of the pleasing features of the evening, though the following chorus, "Now Is the Month of Maying," was very prettily sung.

Mrs. A. A. Dewing as usual made a most favorable impression, singing "The Swallow," with a violin obligato by Llewellyn Hughes. The violin was a little too prominent for the voice, but otherwise the selection was very pleasing. The encore was also artistically rendered.

The gem of the evening was a lullaby entitled "Mother's Song," by Neidlinger. It was a dainty little thing, giving ample opportunity for good work from the second alto and the young ladies made the most of it. The crooning obligato and accompaniment by the other singers put the finishing touch to a truly excellent number.

George B. McBride sang the "Mighty Deep" and "'Tis But a Dream" in good style and proved himself possessed of a rich voice, though he evidently fails to make the most of it.

The last number on the programme, "Waves of the Danube," was somewhat of a disappointment after the other songs. It was light and fairly well sung, but was hardly the finale expected.

Withal the concert was a flattering success, both musically and financially, and credit is due Mr. Hughes for the efficient training he has given the chorus.

The programme was as follows:
"Spinning Chorus" ....R. Wagner
"Bobolink's Song" ....S. A. Emery
(a) Meadow Sweet........J. H. Brewer
(b) Spring Song ....Mendelssohn
"Summer Night" ....Niels Gade
"Souvenir de Bade" ....H. Leonard
"Birth of the Opal"........C. H. Reed
"Now is the Month of Maying"... ....T. Strong
"The Swallow" ....Pinti
"Mother's Song" ....Neidlinger
"The Mighty Deep" ......W. H. Jude
"Waves of the Danube"......Ivanovia

The expression "bringing down the house" is no longer metaphorical, after Mr Bryan's recent experience.

The Kentuckians are hard to please They wouldn't give a Republican a chance to go to the United States Senate and now they are doing the same with the Democratic candidate.

It is easy to figure out which way England wants the tide of conquest to turn. Nearly all the Turkish bonds are held in London, and Threadneedle street controls the situation It is another instance of Christianity having to bow before Mammon.

The recent article in the Salt Lake Tribune entitled "Carrying too Much Steam" had no local significance It referred to ex-Secretary Morton's statement that the current expenses of the government per capita are three times greater now than in 1840.

Bicycle thieves in Bakersfield are obliging. The last two arrested, not only confessed their crimes, but they reduced them to writing giving details and accomplices and methods of working, so that their confessions read like "informations" in felony cases.

Mr. Rat of Reno County, Kansas, recently asked the Legislature to authorize him to change his name. By way of a joke the Legislature refused. Most of the members pronounced Mr. Rat's name when they read the bill. This is worse than anything at Sacramento.

The San Jacinto Register sometimes hits the nail very hard on the head Its latest is.

"If there is one man in this county who is doing well under a gold standard it is William J Bryan. He admits to having made $16,000 out of his new book last month. Bryan is the legitimate successor of Phineas T. Barnum."

The copy reader of the Salinas Journal must be courting a libel suit. We read.

"A very pleasant gathering was held at the residence of Rev George McCormick, D. D, last night to commemorate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the marriage of Rev and Mrs. McCormick. After hearty congratulations to the host and hostess, the happy couple separated."

Alamedans who contemplated catching butterflies that have stings should heed the following from the Chicago Times-Herald.

"A Boston paper says 'Spring is here at last A butterfly was caught at the South End yesterday.' This may be the proper way to catch a butterfly, but when you grasp it is better to catch it about the middle, shifting northwesterly toward the head.'

Here is a contribution willingly offered to the Argus' "Whopper" department: "A Brentwood farmer was in town yesterday and said: 'It's kind o' funny but nevertheless a fact that since the agitating of the Dingley tariff bill my sheep have actually grown about a foot higher and twice as wide as they were a year ago I think everything down my way for the next four years will be all wool and a yard wide.'"

Debts do not trouble Healdsburg. The Enterprise says:

"San Francisco has given up the idea of a flower show this year The executive committee displayed excellent judgment. The fiesta business has been overdone in California, and after the splendid fete given in this city last May, it is useless for cities in San Francisco's class to compete with us The only distressing feature of Healdsburg's festival was the deficit, and that annoys no one save the executive committee."

There must be a scarcity of flowers at Colusa. Surely nothing else could have prompted the Sun man to print this:

"Will not our teachers tell our children how wrong it is to reach over a fence or pull a flower that hangs outside from a shrub that is not theirs. Parents should see to this, but it seems they do not. A flower near the fence is as much the property of the owner as if it grew back twenty feet. Complaints are coming in from everywhere. If you have no flowers and want them, your neighbor will share with you."

Supervisor Mitchell must be a very much abused man. At the recent conference of Supervisors at Los Angeles the Express reports him as follows

"Mr Mitchell of Alameda stated that a great source of annoyance to the Board of this county was the question of caring for indigents The system used by Los Angeles County he commended strongly, and said he would recommend the members of his Board to adopt similar methods. 'These indigents haunt me by night and persecute me at home and in my store' said Mr. Mitchell in conclusion, 'and while I used to think a Supervisor was amply repaid for his duties, I have changed my mind.'"

THE "GREATER OAKLAND."

Alameda is up in arms against the suggestion in the annual report of the Oakland Board of Trade that the day is coming when Oakland, Alameda, Berkeley, Fruitvale and other outlying districts will be consolidated. The outcry is not only against the probability that Alameda may some day be merged in the manner stated, but is also in the nature of objections to Oakland's extending her boundary line in any direction whatever.

The accusation that Oakland is trying to "gobble up" all the territory contiguous to her boundary line is not true. It is simply a case of reciprocity—the districts in question want to come in and Oakland is glad to welcome them. No one can question the benefits that have been received by the section north of Lake Merritt, that was annexed a few years ago, and the residents of the territory now endeavoring to get within the fold are doing so of their own accord. Oakland does not send agents out endeavoring to stir up a feeling that will lead to an annexation election, she simply notifies any and all of her neighbors that she is willing to spread her sheltering wing over those who may desire her protection. It is surely better for a residence section that is without police and fire facilities and that cannot enjoy the street and sewer facilities so near at hand to join hands with a city that is able to furnish all these benefits, and though it is true that every addition helps to build up the town it is also a fact that those dwelling in the newly gained territory also add to their own prosperity.

Whether or not Berkeley, Alameda and Fruitvale will ever be part of the "Greater Oakland" suggested by the Board of Trade is a question that cannot be answered now. The only point desired to be made is that the Alameda ans are not making a fair statement of facts when they accuse Oakland of attempting to "gobble up" everything in sight for her own aggrandisement and at the expense of others.

Who says base ball no longer stirs the California heart? Read this from the Los Angeles Times

"Riverside has accepted San Bernardino's challenge to play baseball for a purse of $150. The money is up and so is the enthusiasm of the citizens of the rival towns The game will be called at San Bernardino May 2d, when all business will be suspended in the two counties, while their respective claims to prowess on the diamond are being decided. Some of the Demopops are thinking about petitioning Gov. Budd to declare the day a State holiday"

Secretary Sherman has accomplished his first feat of diplomacy since he has been in the Cabinet. He has assuaged the feelings of the pompous Sir Julian Pauncefote by allowing that gentleman to get up a little side show procession of his own. The diplomatic corps will therefore go to the Grant funeral exercises as a separate contingent.

"Oom" Paul will need all his craftiness to get out of the net that seems to be drawing around him. With the English warships in Delagoa Bay to the north, the Cape troops to the south and the discontented Uitlanders in the Transvaal itself, the situation can scarcely be said to be in his favor.

They hanged a human brute today at San Quentin when Frank Kloss stepped on the scaffold Whatever little sympathy might have been felt for him was all lost when the papers printed the story of how he cursed and reviled his aged mother when she went to bid him farewell.

They must have "money to burn" in Japan just now, judging by the following item in today's Chronicle: "Japanese officers who fought in the late war against China have petitioned their government to erect a monument to the memory of the horses that fell in battle."

Town Clerk Harris of Napa has no doubt of the lunacy of John Dergane of that town The crazy man went into the clerks office and called him "father." This may be proof of insanity at Napa, but it would not hold good in all parts of the West.

The Sewall family played the election at both ends and of course had to win The selection of the son for the Hawaiian mission effectually disposes of one of the important prizes that it was thought might be awarded to California.

That was a doubtful welcome Ambassador Hay received on his arrival in England yesterday He was presented with a photograph of a painting representing the departure of the Mayflower.

General Miles has received permission to go and see the war As he is not to start, though, for two weeks, the chances are that it will be all over before he gets there.

The bark of another war-dog is heard on the Turkish frontier. Bulgaria thinks it is a good time to insist on what she wants and has issued an ultimatum on the subject.

Judging by the popular demonstrations indulged in just now at Rome, it is a good advertising card for a monarch to have some one attempt to assassinate him.

No wonder that his head lies "uneasy."

Keep away from Panama and have a watchful eye on anything coming from there. Yellow fever is raging on the Isthmus.

It has at last been discovered why old maids are fond of black cats. According to the Hindoo religion such animals contain the souls of army officers.

This is unkind. In the East the man who tells a story at the breakfast table of having seen the airship is under suspicion of having been drunk overnight.

LOS ANGELES, April 23.—Not as many Oakland people as usual are enjoying the fresh delights of this year's fiesta. At the hotels a few are registered, and these are making up for their lack of numbers by very active participation in anything that is going on.

Mr and Mrs John J. Valentine are registered at the Van Nuys, Los Angeles' handsome new hotel The Van Nuys is opposite the Westminster, is built of cream brick and plate glass and has everything as light and airy and up to date as can be imagined The Valentines have come down from Palm Springs, where Mrs Valentine has been staying for some time and where her husband recently joined her. Mr. Valentine made the closing address at the Bankers Convention on Tuesday. His subject was Bimetallism, and was an elaborate argument that international bimetallism is an impossibility and not desirable even if possible The election of officers followed, Mr. Valentine being elected president to succeed N. D. Rideout, of Marysville.

Mr. and Mrs. Trowbridge, of Oakland, formerly of the firm of Kirkland & Trowbridge, are registered at the Westminster. On Monday evening the Trowbridges, accompanied by Mrs Kirkland, might have been seen in a very jolly party at the Orpheum, viewing a Kiralfy ballet and a number of other interesting things. Mr. Kirkland accompanied them. He left Oakland last year to assume the management of the Owl Drug Company here. They have a large yellow store on Spring street, between Third and Fourth They appear very prosperous. Mr. Kirkland is already so popular here that he was chosen to serve on the water festival committee. He has made a very efficient member, as he has artistic tastes and has assisted materially in planning the celebration for Friday night.

Another prominent member of the Oakland colony is John Cunningham, who is a citizen of Los Angeles now. He lately sent for all his dogs from Oakland and had them at the last bench show here, where they won most of the prizes, as usual. He is about to send them up to the San Francisco bench show in charge of a keeper. Yesterday the dogs were on exhibition in a hardware store window on Broadway. The four beautiful Great Danes attracted lots of attention. All are maltese in color. They are Queen, Juanita, Juan and Ivan. All are prize winners but Juanita is the star, though she is the smallest of the four. She wins on points. Mr. Cunningham has just been offered $200 for her, but has refused it. He gets $50 apiece for the puppies when they are six months old. He will not part with any of his old stock. At present all the dogs are wearing collars of white kid.

Miss Helen Wright, Paxton Wright's sister, recently spent four months in Los Angeles, but has returned to Oakland now. Her engagement to wed Charles Davis is currently reported here.

Miss Barden, of Oakland, formerly dramatic editor of the Wave, is one of the ladies in waiting for Queen Francisca. On Tuesday evening Miss Borden danced in the minuet which opened the ball, and was the most elaborate court dance ever planned in Southern California Miss Borden's gown was of cense taffita, with chrysanthemums of darker shade appliqued on. The petticoat was of lighter pink taffeta. The bodice was made with a very long stiff point and was decollete with a flimy fichu of white tulle and white tulle elbow sleeves. The petticoat cleared the floor by five inches, but in the deep courtesies of the minuet swept the polished surface. Very high heeled slippers, pink silk stockings and a white wig completed the costume. Miss Borden danced in the coriae set and afterward at the fancy dress ball.

Miss Bertha Crouch looked very pretty at the ball, though she was not masked. Miss Crouch wore white organdie over pale blue satin, with a pale blue bow in her hair and deep crimson roses. The gown was decolette and short sleeved. Miss Crouch carried a showy boquet of white, sweet peas.

Miss Crouch is staying with her father and mother at the Melrose.

Fred May, formerly in partnership with Fred Jacobs in the insurance business, is located in Los Angeles. Mr. May had a severe attack of appendicitis recently, but has quite recovered again, and is looking extremely well. He says that his next move will be to Honolulu.

Mrs. Guy Earl is visiting Los Angeles and was one of the guests at the masked ball Mrs. Earl's health is much improved and she is able to go out evenings.

Judge F. W. Henshaw has been in the Fiesta City, leaving for home yesterday. C. A. Culver is also registered at one of the leading hotels, as is Miss M. C. Crouch, of Sacramento.

Los Angeles is impressibly gay. The city is more beautifully decorated than ever before, with banners, flags, sashes and hundreds of yards of bunting. Palms and firs are banked on every telegraph pole and masses of finy pepper branches are used to form canopies over the street.

The masked ball on Tuesday evening was really the opening of the fiesta. The entrance of the Queen, the guards and the court was very impressive. An immense crowd of spectators at five dollars a head viewed the spectacle.

In the upper galleries at popular prices were seated those who were merely on-lookers. These were debarred from the floor and the supper privileges.

ELMHURST PLEASES ALL.

New York City Also Has a Suburb of the Name.

Prettily Located Residence Sections That Are Growing Rapidly.

Property owners at Elmhurst, the delightful little suburban locality, a short distance from Oakland, on the San Leandro road, just at this time are congratulating themselves on their selection of a home The New York Journal recently devoted six columns to the Elmhurst near New York City, after which our Elmhurst was named. The Journal gives it the preference among all the suburban towns lying within a short distance of the great metropolis.

The site of the Elmhurst of this coast was selected with almost the same ideas in mind as those that led to the selection of New York's delightful suburbs. It has easy and rapid communication with this city and San Francisco, natural advantages of location, the best of climate, and entrancing beauty. Regarding the Eastern Elmhurst, the Journal says

"It is on the Long Island Railroad, and only thirteen minutes' ride from the Long Island ferry. And yet, short though the ride is, it is sufficient to take one from the smoke and dirt and noise of New York and Long Island City to where there is comfort and beauty. To one who goes to Elmhurst from the packed streets of New York, the sky is wonderfully blue, and the sun is strangely bright, and the breezes that come over the rolling sweeps of land that lie between the town and the water of Long Island Sound are laden with an invigorating purity and freshness such as are never possessed by the city air."

All this may be said of our Western Elmhurst and much more Instead of being far out of town, Elmhurst is within walking distance of Oakland's business center, has all the beauty of the surrounding hills, with the green of the trees and shrubbery and the healthful saline breezes of the bay. A more restful, thought-inspiring location, where, after the busy cares of the day, the city toiler may take his ease, could not be found. Any visitor is struck with the beauty of the spot, especially at this time of the year. The green hills with their myriad poppy patches and the rare ozone which pervades the atmosphere would, of themselves, recommend the site of Elmhurst to even a casual visitor. Especially are property owners in this favored district congratulating themselves and a new activity has been given real estate by the many inquiries regarding Elmhurst.

DETAILS OF THE ATTACK.

The King Proved Himself to Be a Man of Courage.

By Associated Press to The Tribune

NEW YORK April 23.—A special to the Herald from Rome, gives the following attack on the life of King Humbert:

Indescribable excitement was caused in Rome by the attempt on the life of King Humbert. As his majesty was on his way to the races, a man made a rush at the royal carriage, sprang upon the step and made a stab at the King, with a dagger concealed in his handkerchief His majesty, however, saw the blow coming and had time to turn it by striking the mans wrist with his elbow, and the dagger buried itself in the cushion of the carriage The would-be assassin threw away his weapon and tried to flee, but was arrested by the passers-by

The man is twenty-four years old and named Petro Acciarito. He is a blacksmith by trade.

On his majestys arrival on the race course, he received a perfect ovation. To the persons who came to congratulate him on his escape, the King smilingly said "These are the little accidents incident to my situation"

A quarter of an hour after the attempt on the King's life, Queen Margherita, who was driving to the races on the same route, passed the open carriage in which the would-be assassin was being conveyed, in the custody of two gendarmes.

"What a sinister face that man has," said her majesty. "What can he have done?" and it was not until she reached the race course that she learned what had happened Though very pale, her majesty succeeded in concealing her emotion.

The Marquise Di Rudini, who was on the race course, returned to the city after a brief conversation with the King, in company with the prefect of the police.

The would-be murderer declares he had no accomplices, but the police had been on the outlook for him as a dangerous anarchist, and had lost all trace of him on the preceding day Two men, suspicious in appearance were noticed on the road, not far from the place where the attempt on the King's life was made

The return of the sovereigns to the city was marked by the most enthusiastic ovations. On their arrival at the Quirinal a deputation of workingmen asked to be received by the King to congratulate him in the name of the people, and they accompanied his majesty on the balcony where his appearance was greeted by the assembled crowd with the wildest enthusiasm.

A Te Deum will be sung at Sudars, the property of the house of Savoy. The Queen and court will be present, and invitations have been sent, as the church is very small. It is not yet known what attitude the vatican will assume.

The Duchess of Aosta was the first person whom the King told on his arrival on the race course of the danger to which he had been exposed. His majesty spoke of the incident in such a playful way that one of them thought he was joking.

The whole city is decorated in bunting in honor of King Humbert's escape.

THE ASSAILANT INSANE.

Physicians who have been examining Petrio Accirato, the iron worker of Artegna, Provine of Udine, who tried to stab King Humbert yesterday with a dagger while his Majesty was on his way to the races, pronounce him insane.

HONOR WELL DESERVED

Two Popular Californians Are Chosen for High Places.

STATE LIBRARIAN E. D. M'CABE.

His Career Has Been a Continuous Round of Success.

PRIVATE SECRETARY SHIELDS.

A Bright Young Man Whose Worth Has Been Recognized.

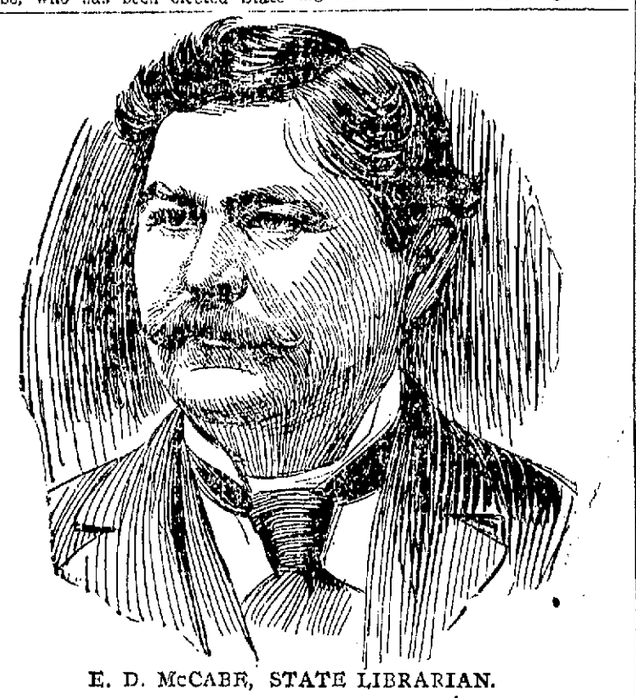
It has been said that a prophet is without honor in his own country and though this may be often true it is pleasant to note that there are occasionally instances where the reverse is the case.

A happy illustration of this has just occurred in the State service, for two of the most popular and deserving young men in California have been chosen for high places and in them have been reposed trusts so extensive that no further proof is needed of the honor and esteem in which they are held.

The gentlemen in question are E. D. McCabe, who has been elected State Librarian and Peter J. Shields, who has been appointed private secretary to Governor Budd. Mr. McCabe has for the past two years filled the place now occupied by Mr. Shields and the last-named gentleman during the same period of time was secretary of the Code Commission.

The changes were brought about this week and were made possible by the election of the then State Librarian, Dr. Mathews to the secretaryship of the Board of Health. McCabe was then promptly elected by the library trustees to fill the vacancy caused by the retirement of Mathews and the same day Governor Budd announced the appointment of Shields in McCabe's place.

Both of these positions are notable in every sense of the word. They are regarded as two of the most trustworthy offices in the State and that the new incumbents are well qualified to fill them is best shown by their records.



E. D. McCABE, STATE LIBRARIAN.

M'CABE'S CAREER.

Ed McCabe is a typical native son of California. He comes of a sturdy stock his father being one of the little band of Argonauts, who made the fame of California world-wide. Ed was born in Tuolumne County on April 18, 1869, and passed the first few years of his life there and in Calaveras County. In 1867, the family moved to Stanislaus County and engaged in farming, and amidst all the environments of ranch life Ed. grew up to manhood.

In 1877 he attended the University Mound College, from which institution he graduated in 1880. Though having only just come of age he was, directly on leaving college, appointed Under Sheriff of Stanislaus County under Sheriff A. S. Fulkerth and in that capacity served nearly two years. He was known throughout the San Joaquin County as "the boy sheriff" but though his years were tender he could round up an outlaw just as well as any of the veteran frontiersmen.

With the money he saved from his salary while in the sheriff's office McCabe decided to bring about the ambition of his life. He moved to San Francisco and took up a course at Hastings College of Law, which institution he attended until 1884, the year of his graduation.

His popularity in his home county was so great that almost immediately on his return to Stanislaus he was elected as County Clerk. This was a notable instance of his prestige when one takes into consideration the fact that he had been absent for two or three years and furthermore that he had a popular man to run against.

He served as County Clerk for four years and after laying down the cares of office formed a law partnership with Frank H. Gould of Merced. The firm practiced law in Merced County with great success, and was only dissolved two years ago when McCabe accepted the invitation of Governor Budd to become his private secretary.

The circle of friends McCabe had in his home county has, in his last mentioned capacity, become widened, so as to include the whole State. There was never a better-liked official in the office of the Governor of California than he, and the popularity of the present administration has had a powerful aid through his personality. Courteous, possessed of sound reasoning powers and with a keen knowledge of men he made a most capable and efficient secretary to the Chief Executive, and only those who have been about the Capitol and therefore know the duties of the office can fully appreciate what such a record means.

Among his friends, Ed. McCabe is accounted a whole-souled gentleman. He is good-hearted to a fault, the soul of honor, a genial companion and with his ready wit and repartee is a charming conversationalist. Although a native son and still in the State he has been out of his shell, for he took a trip to Europe three years or so ago and ripened his knowledge with the experience and opportunities of the old world.

In politics he is a dyed-in-the-wool Democrat. His advice has always been sought in his party councils, and the high place he holds in the estimation of his political friends is shown by his constant selection to represent them at the polls. A ticket with Ed. McCabe's name on it has never been beaten, so that accounts a good deal for the prestige he bears wherever he lives.

During the Budd campaign he took the stump in the San Joaquin country, and as he is a ready talker, brimful of sound sense and with a knack of hitting the target every time, he did much to bring about the victory that perched on the Stockton man's banner. During the last campaign, too, his voice was heard in public, and one of the best speeches delivered at Sacramento during the political fray was the one he made at Oak Park just prior to election. It was widely quoted all over the State, for although almost extemporaneous it was bristling with telling points.

In his new sphere of State Librarian, McCabe will be at home. The surroundings are thoroughly congenial, for with the law library at his command he will have opportunities in the line of his profession that will reap him untold benefits. It is the boast of the Capitol that no one but a popular man ever sat in the State Librarian's chair, and the truth of this is recalled when the names of his immediate predecessors, Dr. Mathews and Dana Perkins, are considered. Ed. McCabe will bear worthily the mantle that has fallen on his shoulders, and throughout the State there will be expressions of satisfaction at his selection for so important an office. Just what his ambitions are no one knows but himself, but it is safe to say that if he ever comes to the front as a candidate at the polls for a State office the man who beats him will have to break all the records, for Ed. will do something in that line himself.

PETER J. SHIELDS.

Peter J. Shields is also a native son, for he was born in the very county in which he now resides. This happy event occurred in 1862, and Mr. Shields therefore pleads guilty to having participated in thirty-five summers and a like number of winters.

His early years were passed on a farm and his education was obtained in the various schools of Sacramento county. He graduated from each institution with an ease that gave great promise for the future, and having set his mind on being a lawyer he, at the age of seventeen, commenced to read Blackstone in the office of Judge A. P. Catlin. He did not have the benefits of any special legal course, yet he mastered his subject so well that when only twenty-one years old he stood the test of a Supreme Court examination and was admitted to practice in all the courts of the State.

A liberal offer made to him in the literary line prevented him from at once plunging absolutely into the business of his profession. He was offered and accepted the position of associate editor of the "American Decisions," a series of legal works published by Bancroft, Whitney & Co. His headquarters remained at Sacramento, and in addition to his literary labors he attended to the legal business that began to come to him.

His capacity to make friends was shown even in these early stages of his career, and while still a very young man he received public recognition for his services to the Democratic party by being appointed a trustee of the California State Library to serve with A. C. Freeman, Henry Edgerton, A. G. Booth and I. S. Belcher.

He was working too much though, and his health began to give way. It was hard to submit to the orders of the doctors who told him that he must for the time abandon his professional pursuits, but as the alternative might be the sacrifice of his life there was no choice in the matter. He laid down all that he had wrought and which was so promising and retired into private life.

The next eight years were devoted to a search for relief to his overtaxed energy, and following the advice of his physicians much of the time was given to agricultural pursuits. He went in for fruit-raising and breeding thoroughbred stock, trotting horses and Jersey cattle being his specialty. Like everything he did, this was done thoroughly and with such good results that he today owns one of the choicest herds of Jerseys in the United States. His opportunities for this kind of life were the fullest, for his parents owned, and still own, their Sacramento county farm, his mother having the distinction of being a member of the State Board of Trade.

His health mended slowly but surely, and by 1894 he had recovered enough to re-enter active life. He returned to the practice of law in Sacramento, but had scarcely got started before he was offered the position of Deputy State Librarian. He accepted and was engaged in that capacity when the Legislature of 1895 was in session. That was the time when the Code Commission was created, and when, a few weeks later, Governor Budd made his appointments, it was found that he had selected Peter Shields as the best man possible to attend to the onerous duties of secretary of the Commission.

The next two years, those preceding the recent session, were therefore passed by Shields in his new sphere. The place suited him and he suited the place, for the constant legal work it entailed not only proved a great educator for him, but also enabled him to bestow on his work the benefit of all his past studies. It soon became known that he was the key-note of the Commission, and the criticism that was levelled in some quarters on the Commissioners was never applied to him, for friends, opponents and all united in declaring him the brainy man of the Board. All the good that was accomplished by the Commission was brought about by him, and the personal observations Governor Budd was able to make convinced the Executive that Shields was the man he wanted in his office after Ed. McCabe had stepped out to assume the role of State Librarian.

When therefore the changes were made the early part of this week Shields was promptly selected as the new private secretary, and in this position he is now firmly established in the Governors office.

It is pleasing to thus be able to record the success of a bright young man such as Peter J. Shields. He worked his way to the front by his own efforts and once he got there he quickly commanded attention, for the older politicians were not slow to discover that a new star was shining. Much of his advancement has been due to his personal friendships, for he quickly earns the lasting regard of those with whom he becomes associated.

"The highest ambition which survives me," he wrote in a letter to a friend the other day, and the sentiment was one which he was unconscious would ever receive publication, "is the desire to make warm friends and to deserve them. Pride of position can never take the place of the respect and esteem of the people whom I regard. I hope that in my new official life I shall be as successful in promoting personal friendships as I have in humbler stations."

There can be no question as to the result. One is bound to admire talent, and those who know Peter Shields are aware that he is brimful of it. He is too sensible a man to have his head turned by any passing success, and his unassuming, quiet, gentlemanly ways inspire a respect that soon engenders close friendships.

His opportunities in his new vocation to continue the career he has so ably begun are many, and that he will meet every requirement those who know him are certain. Governor Budd is the subject of congratulations for having so closely allied to his administration so popular and clever a young man, and everyone will join in wishing continued good-fortune to the new private secretary.

FIGHTING FOR THE ROAD.

Some of the Advantages of the Proposed New County Roads.

How the Tunnell Route Could Be Operated With the Adams Road.

The committee of seven appointed by the Merchants' Exchange Tuesday evening to urge the opening of the Adams-Kennedy road is already at work planning and discussing, though as yet, naturally, nothing definite has been outlined.

In considering the matter today. J. F. W. Sohst, chairman of the committee, said to a Tribune reporter:

"It will cost $5,000 to build the connecting link from Thorn Hill to the proposed Kennedy tunnel and put into repair the old Kennedy road up to the Adams road. The Adams road is in a good condition and the amount required to put it into perfect order is very small. The Contra Costa people who are opposed to the Summit road, are standing in their own light. If ever the tunnel shall be built it can only be done by bringing the people up there. At present, there are not 60 people out of 60,000 who have seen the mouth of the tunnell. With this proposed connection, 25,000 people would pass there within the next twelve months. The question then will be asked, Why can't we put a tunnel through this place which had already been surveyed and started twenty-five years ago, when the population of Oakland and Alameda County was only half of what it is today. If it were feasible then, it certainly is notw. The distance of the mountain to be cut through is only 1,100 feet, 100 feet on each side can be an open cut. That would leave 800 feet of tunnel. The cost can't be so very much, but I would leave that to the engineers' estimate.

"There would be this advantage if the tunnel were built. People who want to go into Contra Costa County, would avoid the eighteen per cent grade which they have to go over now. Instead of bringing half a load into Oakland, they could bring a full load. To give a better idea of this condition of things, Oaklanders often have seen express wagons with six horses attached to it coming from Contra Costa, where two horses would accomplish the same work were the tunnel there.

"The summit road, therefore, would answer two purposes. It would give us the best mountain drive in the United States. People who are out for pleasure would not care to drive through a tunnel, and could enjoy a scenic drive of from twelve to fifteen miles in length. Farmers and business men could use the tunnel to commercial advantage. It would add 10,000 people to the population of Contra Costa County in a very short period, because it would be the principal connecting road between the two counties. The trade of that county would naturally come to Oakland. The best that could be made of the Fish Ranch road would be a ten per cent grade, and that at an expenditure of $30,000. Would it not then be better to have a five per cent grade with a tunnel for the same amount of money? The people who are opposing this project claim that the road will be much longer but it is proved that the difference will not be more than from a quarter to half a mile. They will then have a road that can be traversed twelve months of the year, instead of only nine months as now, and, besides avoid all the accidents which are now continually occurring.

"I talked with Mr. Buckley who has lived on the road for forty years, and he showed me a stiff right thumb and a stiff index finger, and I told him he was in luck to be still among the living after having lived on that road so long."

OFFICIAL BASEBALL.

Rival County and City Nines May Bring the Mayor in the Field.

A scheme is on foot to organize an opposition baseball team among the city and county officials. J. Cal Ewing will organize and manage the county team while Harry Thomas will look after the playing employees at the City Hall.

Some people think that the city will have the better of it as there are the Fire and Police Departments to draw from, whereas the county must confine itself to the two county buildings.

Nothing definite has yet been decided upon except that the Mayor will play short-stop for the city's. Treasurer Gilpin, Officer Rand and John Wild will probably compose the City's field.

When Mayor Thomas was Chief of Police he organized a team among his men, and challenged the Sheriff's office. A game was played and the police were beaten.

Chief Lloyd Expresses Himself on the Prohibition Question.

THE EFFECTS IN OAKLAND.

He Said It Would Have a Bad Effect on Business.

BRIMSTONE HARD TO MOVE.

A Letter From New York That Raises an Interesting Issue.

Chief of Police Lloyd has received the following letter from the editor of a New York prohibition journal

"NEW YORK, April 17 1897.

"To the Chief of Police, Oakland, Cal. Dear Sir.—For the benefit of our readers we respectfully request a brief expression of your views, based upon your observation and experience, upon these two topics.

First—What proportion of the business which comes to your department arise from the use or abuse of intoxicating liquor?

"Second—What do you think would be the effect, so far as the work of the police department of your city is concerned, if all the saloons of your city were closed and liquor selling and liquor drinking should cease? If you could do the work of your department with a smaller force in such an event, how much smaller?

"We take occasion to thank you in advance for your favor. Respectfully,

"EDITOR OF THE VOICE."

THE CHIEF'S ANSWER.

In answer the Chief has sent the following:

"Dear Sir—In answer to your communication of April 15th asking my views upon two topics named by yourself, both touching upon the liquor question, I would state:

"First—That no accurate estimate could be made of the proportion of police business arising from the use or abuse of intoxicating liquor, as in many instances crime really originates from over-indulgence in liquor when no actual proof to that effect is at hand, and on the other hand, liquor is oftentimes apparently the cause of the commission of crime when it really has nothing to do with it. I speak now of what we class as misdemeanors and minor crimes. Every year there are more people arrested for drunkenness than for any other ten crimes, yet the police force has less trouble with the drunkard than with any other criminal. In this city in 1896, out of 3,066 arrests, 1216 were plain drunks. There were 170 cases of battery, many of which were due to liquor; 157 cases of disturbing the peace and 16 cases of assault with a deadly weapon, which crimes are also often attributable to liquor, yet the department was kept in a constant state of confusion for nearly a month by ten beardless boys who were looting this town almost nightly. Therefore, while I realize the great harm growing out of over-indulgence in intoxicating liquor, I am not prepared to admit that a great amount of police business is the result of that evil. A great many of the most hardened, desperate and dangerous criminals that we have seldom use intoxicating liquor to excess, and hence I cannot see that the absence of the open saloon would materially change the status of police business. In fact I am of the opinion that the great majority of dangerous criminals whose operations render large police forces necessary, are the direct outgrowth of our unnatural social and economic conditions that breed poverty, want and despair in the human heart. That men out of employment and unable to secure the necessities of life in this land of plenty, is the first cause of a much larger percentage of criminality than is the liquor evil. That it is man's inhumanity to man and our government's partnership in that inhumanity rather than man's insobriety, that demands a large police force in every city. This is the opinion of your humble servant, and I have never been accused of being friendly to rum.

"Second—The effect in Oakland if all the saloons were to be closed would be that our business would be ruined, grass would, metaphorically speaking, grow in the doorways of our business houses, and neither drunkenness nor police business would decrease, for the simple reason that those who wanted liquor would get it in unbroken packages, or would cross over to San Francisco, or go to Berkeley or Alameda, our nearest neighbors, buy their liquor there and come back to Oakland to raise hell. Prohibition in patches will never do anything but harm to the particular patch worked upon. If the reform could become general, there might ultimately be less demand for large numbers of policemen in all our cities, but it would require time to change people's dispositions, or rather to work the brimstone out of their systems. Until economic conditions are bettered I am of the opinion that there will be little improvement in our criminal record, no matter how much prohibition in patches may be applied to liquor. I repeat that want and misery caused by unnatural conditions is a greater progenitor of crime than liquor in my opinion. Yours very respectfully,

"C. E. LLOYD,
Chief of Police."

LAST OF EARTH.

The Remains of Mrs. H. E. Hall Borne to Mountain View.

The funeral of the late Mrs. H. E. Hall took place yesterday afternoon from the First Presbyterian Church and was attended by a large number of relatives, as also of friends who had known and revered the deceased through life. The coffin was covered with fresh and beautiful flowers, the aroma of which pervaded the apartment, a grateful reminder of the sweetness and gentleness of the life that had passed away. The services were very simple in accordance with the well known wishes of the deceased. There were several concerted pieces rendered by the choir in a very effective manner and the burial service was read by Rev. Dr. Coyle, who improved the opportunity to deliver a touching tribute to the worth and services of the deceased.

At the close of the exercises, the remains were tenderly borne from the church and laid away in Mountain View Cemetery.

A THRILLING PIECE.

"For Fair Virginia" Is Warmly Applauded at the Macdonough.

An excellent performance of For Fair Virginia was given at the Macdonough Theater last evening. The play is one of the most successful war dramas that has ever been written, and has been most carefully and attractively staged. While the scenes are laid in the time of the civil war, there is nothing hackneyed in the treatment of the theme. Many of the situations are novel and decidedly interesting. One of the strongest scenes of the play is that at the end of the first act, where Edward Esmond, "a Southern Yankee," married to a Virginia girl, feels it to be his duty to forsake his wife and boy to fight on the side of the Union. The fiery words of the Southern wife, as she rends the ties between them, and delicates her broken life and lacerated heart to Fair Virginia, are characteristic and thrilled one's heart by the idea of the deep, but hopeless, patriotism they conveyed.

The scene was intensified by the parting of Esmond from his infant son Julian. Each succeeding act strengthens the slowly unfolding plot, and the last acts finds the plucky Yankee in the arms of a vanquished but happy "Johnny," and the Southern heroine safe in the shelter of her loving husband's arms.

Mrs. Whytal was the fetching Yankee girl and immediately found favor with her audience. Her action is spontaneous by nature and her graceful presence lent much to the many pretty scenes in which she was the central figure."

For Fair Virginia will be given its last performance in this city tonight.

William A. English of Berkeley jumped from the 9 o'clock local in that town last night and was dragged beneath the cars. His leg was badly crushed and it may have to be amputated. Stratton, Wilcox and Porter amputated the left foot at the ankle, but efforts will be made to save the leg.

J. C. CARLSON INJURED.

J. C. Carlson, formerly manager of the Gallindo Hotel, was injured in jumping off the Narrow Gauge train last evening. Mr. Carlson lives at Fourteenth and Webster streets, and desired to get off the train at Webster instead of going down to the station to avoid the longer walk.

Just as he was about to alight, his overcoat slipped from his arm. He made a grab for the coat and missed his footing. Mr. Carlson fell and plowed a furrow in the street, a couple of yards long with his chin and severely strained his shoulder. It was thought last night that the accident might prove serious, but the gentleman was able to go about his duties this morning, although considerably shaken up.

WANT SANITARY LAUNDRIES

The Board of Health Wishes Reforms in the Wash-Houses.

Outside Lavatories Must Be Able to Show a "Clean Bill."

The Sanitary Inspectors have about finished their inspections of the Chinese wash-houses in the city, and when the work is completed Dr. Bradley and Secretary Schafer will commence on the ordinance which the Board of Health instructed them to draw, regulating the care of laundered clothes.

Among other things the ordinance will probably include a clause pertaining to clothes washed outside the city. This will make it necessary for people who do washing outside of the city to secure certificates from the Health Boards of their respective districts, certifying to the sanitary conditions of their respective laundries.

Inspector Ott states that the wash-houses in Oakland have comparatively clean wash-rooms, of Chinamen, but that the sleeping apartments are frightfully filthy. A great many of the wash-rooms have cement floors and it will probably be recommended that such floors shall be laid in all of them.

Mr. Ott further states that the spraying with the mouth is being stopped, most of the Chinamen having secured whisk brooms for the purpose.

MAY DIE IN HARNESS

Justice Field's Colleagues Think He Will Not Retire.

THE PROSPECTS FOR M'KENNA

Judge Day of Canton in Line for a Cabinet Vacancy.

M'KINLEY IS "SAWING WOOD"

Speculation on the Status of the Expected Changes.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

CHICAGO, April 23.—A special to the Times-Herald from Washington, D. C., says:

Although President McKinley has made no disclosures concerning the matter, so far as is known, there is an understanding that when the first vacancy occurs upon the Supreme bench Attorney-General McKenna will be appointed to a place upon the court and Judge William R. Day of Canton, O., will be his successor.

Judge Day was one of Major McKinley's first choices for a seat in the Cabinet, but Mr. Day, who is responsible to the heirs of his wife's father for the management of their estate, which has for some time been in anything but a satisfactory condition, did not feel that he could take either this post or that of Solicitor-General, which he was also urged to accept.

It is well known that Attorney-General McKenna prefers to be upon the bench, and now that Judge Day has succeeded in relieving himself of a large part of the responsibility concerning the property committed to his care in Canton, it is believed he will be willing to become a member of the McKinley Administration.

McKenna, it has been remarked, goes to the Supreme Court every decision day and listens carefully to the proceedings. Among his intimate friends there is an understanding that he expects to go on the bench within a year or two in case there should be a vacancy.

Whether or not Justice Field will be willing to retire next August, when his term of service will exceed that of Chief Justice Marshall, remains to be seen. Among his colleagues on the bench there is a belief that Justice Field has no intention of retiring and that he will die in the harness.

PARTING WORDS.

Very Interesting Addresses at the Theological Seminary Dinner.

About fifty guests were present at the Pacific Theological Seminary dinner following the graduating exercises of yesterday afternoon.

At its close Dr. McLean spoke on the work of the Seminary Faculty, and the training of a worker in Christian fields. He called attention to the necessity of a minister's broadening his views and education beyond simple pulpit work, and towards this end, suggested a course of general study in connection with that of the usual seminary work. The seminary was in position to instruct those who desired to enter upon Christian Endeavor, Sunday school and mission work, as well as those for the ministry, and financially, was in a splendid condition.

The subjects and speakers who followed were Mr. Freer, who spoke on "The Trustees' Stake;" Rev. J. L. Wirt, "Alumni and Alma Mater;" Professor Langdon of San Anselmo, "Seminary Fraternity;" Professor Shaw of Stanford, "Churches and Seminary;" Prof. Bradley, "University and Seminary;" President Martin Kellogg of the State University, "The Seminary in Education," Rev. Mr. Kimball of the Pilgrim Congregational Church, East Oakland, delivered the closing address.

MORSE CONFESSES.

Richard Morse, who forged an endorsement to a postal money order, has been brought from Los Angeles to San Francisco, and has confessed his crime. Morse intercepted a letter containing a $25 money order addressed to Fred W. Appleby of this city, at the general delivery in San Francisco. He had the San Francisco authorities forward the order to Oakland, where, by identification of a bartender named Frank Roach, the order was cashed. He has already repaid Appleby.

OAKLAND'S DELEGATES.

Mayor W. R. Thomas has appointed as delegates to the Pure Food Congress which convenes in San Francisco on April 30th, W. S. Merriam, N. A. Kosser, C. M. Plumb, Fred Barker, G. O. Sanborn, Dr. W. J. Wilcox, H. D. Cushing, Fred Sinclair, J. R. Talcott and J. W. Nelson.

A Council Committee.

There will be a meeting of the Finance Committee of the City Council this evening. It is said that some action will be taken toward a general cutting of salaries of city officials, but it is thought unlikely that anything will come out of it.

Collecting Taxes.

Yesterday was the busiest day the Tax Collectors have had. Over $15,000 was taken in, leaving something over $45,000 yet to be collected. Today has been quieter.

Councilman Cuvellier's Ideas on the Annexation Publication.

THE "NEWS" IS QUESTIONED

Editor Travers Willing to Withdraw if so Desired.

HIS SPIRIT IS COMMENDED

No Chances Should Be Taken on an Important Matter.

Councilman Cuvellier has a word or two to say concerning the publication of the annexation election in the Emeryville News.

"All this muddle the Council has gotten into is the result of hasty legislation, and of the manner we have fallen into of rushing measures through with a whoop and a hurrah," he said to a Tribune man to-day. "This constant suspension of the rules is a most pernicious practice, and if it is not stopped it is going to land us all in a big hole some day, and then we will be sorry too late.

"I must say, however, that in the instance of this annexation proclamation some of the members of the annexation committee are to blame for its being hurried through as it has been. But that is no excuse for us.

"The other evening when in the Council there arose some question as to the legal standing of the Emeryville News, it was I who asked that Mr. Travers, the proprietor of that paper, be put under oath, and after he was sworn I asked him these three questions, which he answered affirmatively: 'Has your paper been established fully six months?' 'Has it appeared regularly weekly during that time?' 'Have you a bona fide subscription list?' Councilman Plumb and President Pringle also questioned him, and his answers were in the affirmative. The majority of the Council voted to publish the proclamation in the Emeryville News.

"Later on I got to thinking the matter over, and upon investigation and an interview with Mr. Travers, I found that the editorial and reportorial work of the paper seems to have been done sometimes in Oakland, sometimes in Alameda, that the printing of the News has been done sometimes in Alameda, sometimes in Oakland and is now being done in Berkeley. When printed the paper is simply distributed in Emeryville. It was only about a week ago that Mr. Travers rented a room in Emeryville, so as to have an office there. Taking all things into consideration, I do not consider the Emeryville News an Emeryville publication, and from the fact that part of the work on the paper is done in Oakland, I do not consider that the News is in the full sense of the law a paper published and printed outside of Oakland.

"Mr. Travers does not agree with me on that point," continued Mr. Cuvellier, "and I believe that he is perfectly sincere in his conviction that the publication of the annexation ordinance in his paper would be perfectly legal. I have my doubts about it, and I think the City Council should run no chances in the matter.

"I have talked this subject over with some of the Councilmen, and when we have our next regular meeting Monday, the 3rd of May, some of us will move to strike out the name of the Emeryville News and to substitute the name of some other paper. It will also probably be necessary to change the date of the election to the 10th of June, so as to have the ordinance published four times in the outside weekly paper which may be selected.

"I hope that this time the various papers offering to publish the annexation ordinance will be papers having an established office, where all the business, printing and circulating of the paper is carried on in one town, and that they will be bona fide newspapers, registered at the post office as second class mail matter and having a subscription list of bona fide paying subscribers. We cannot afford to take any chances of spending several thousand dollars of the city's money for an annexation election which might afterward be declared null and void on account of some little legal technicality.

"Notwithstanding that Mr. Travers considers that he is in the right," Mr. Cuvellier concluded, "still I find him disposed to agree to whatever may be for the best interests of the city, and he told me last evening that if any of us Councilmen thought for a minute that the publication of the ordinance in the Emeryville News might jeopardize the result of the election he would gladly make any sacrifice of his individual interests and willingly see some other paper substituted in the place of his own. This proves Mr. Travers to be a public spirited young man and will win for him the further esteem and good will of the Councilmen who stood by him when they thought that he was in the right."

THE VARGAS DIVORCE.

A Very Lively Suit on Trial in Judge Ellsworth's Court.

The divorce case of Louisa Vargas against her husband Joseph packed Judge Ellsworth's court room this morning with a lobby of men. The testimony in the case is the ruciest produced in a divorce case for some time, but it is hardly fit to be printed. The wife seeks the separation on the ground of extreme cruelty, while the husband has entered a cross-complaint of adultery.

The wife testified this morning that her husband had often threatened to do her bodily harm, and on one occasion, after a quarrel, he had tried to brain her with a chair.

Attorneys Chapman and Walsh represent the husband, while A. A. Moore and Robert Edgar represent the wife.

MRS. PRICE AGAIN.

She Is Still in the Business of Attempting Suicide.

NOW SURPRISING NEW ORLEANS

Faithfully Repeating the Story She Told Sheriff White.

AGAIN JUMPS OFF A BRIDGE.

Of Course She Is Rescued and Help Is Generously Extended.

Mrs. Laura Price, as she was known in Oakland is certainly a very remarkable young woman. She is going over the entire country and soliciting sympathy in different cities by pretending to commit suicide.

The most peculiar circumstance in connection with her escapades is that she always attempts to take her life in the same manner. She waits till a big crowd is on some bridge, then with a heartrendering yell she jumps into the cruel water and——is saved.

While passing through Haywards, Mrs. Price tried to jump into the creek, but a constable was at hand and she was rescued. She was brought to the County Jail and enlisted Sheriff White's sympathy until he found that his guest had done the same thing at Redlands, Watsonville, Salinas and a dozen other towns and then she was discharged.

Now she has turned up at New Orleans and her story of youthful marriage, desertion, circus-riding is exactly the same as that told all over the coast. The only change she has made is in her name. At New Orleans she said she is Mrs. Maud Virginia Ballard.

The Daily Item of New Orleans of last Friday prints the following story of the girl:

"This afternoon shortly after 10 o'clock the actions of a young woman who evidently courted death, created considerable excitement on the Old Basin in the vicinity of Dorgenois street. The woman appeared to be in great distress for she several times attempted to mount the barriers that separated her from the water of the canal. A crowd of curious and noisy youngsters followed in her wake and every time she tried to climb over a pile of lumber for the purpose of precipitating herself into the basin, they cried to her to desist.

"When the young woman reached a point between Broad and Dorgenois streets her actions were observed by three young men named Dan Reehlmann, Joseph Walle, and J. Kelly. When these parties saw the sufferer she was approaching a cleared spot and was trying to throw herself into the basin. They lost no time in reaching her side, and removing her to a place of safety.

She told a terrible story of misfortune and desertion, and as Kelly and his friends did not know what to do for her they concluded to take her to the office of Chief Gaster.

"When police headquarters were reached she told Chief Gaster that her name was Maud Virginia Ballard, and that she is a circus performer by occupation. Her repeated attempts at self-destruction, she declared were due to financial distress and to the fact that her husband deserted her. She stated that she has been a circus performer since she was 9 years of age, and she is now 21. She was married in New York City at the age of 13 to Frank Ballard, a trapeze artist. Her maiden name was Maud Virginia Creagh, and her mother keeps a boarding house in Gotham at the present time.

Mrs. Ballard stated that she traveled around the country with her husband, and until five months ago, when he cruelly deserted her and left her to earn her living alone. The separation occurred in Oregon City, near Portland, Oregon. Mrs. Ballard declared that no act of hers induced her husband to leave her. He was advised to desert her by another woman and followed the advice. She made her way from Oregon City to San Francisco and finally came to New Orleans, reaching here only this morning. She declared that she had not a cent in the world and lived while on the road on the sympathetic-hearted. She sometimes walked the tracks and sometimes begged a ride from the trainmen.

"When she reached here this morning she was on the verge of starvation and when she found that there was nothing before her but suffering she determined to jump into the basin and end her troubles. She says that she has three children, the oldest of which is 11 years. They are now in this city somewhere, with her sister-in-law, but she does not know where. She would not give the name of her sister-in-law. Mrs. Ballard stated that before leaving her, her husband gambled away over $400 of her money.

"Mrs. Ballard also stated that she has epileptic fits, which prevent her from taking a position in any circus. The fits were brought on by an accident which she witnessed several years ago.

"The woman was placed in the first precinct station. She will be turned over to Dr. Clay this afternoon."

WILL NOT FIGHT.

Mr. McChesney Does Not Fear the Recent Fraternity Amendment.

The attitude of the fraternity element of the High School in introducing the amendment to take the supervision of Aegis nominations out of the hands of the faculty, has caused some people to think that things looked a little like rebellion.

Principal McChesney, however, rather laughs at the idea of any trouble resulting, and believes that the amendment will die a natural death. It hardly stands within reason that any attempt will be made by the fraternity element to carry the amendment in the face of the faculty's disapproval.

Thin Children

ONE SATISFACTION in giving Scott's Emulsion to children is they never object to it. The fact is they soon become fond of it. Another satisfaction is because it will make them plump, and give them growth and prosperity. It should be given to all children who are too thin, or too pale.

TOO MANY INSANE.

Work for the Commission Created by the Last Legislature.

THE CARE OF STATE ASYLUMS.

Tax-Payers Burdened With the Work of Keeping Them Up.

THE VIEWS OF DR. WOOLSEY.

How the Extension of Insanity Ought at Once to Be Prevented.

The views of Dr. E. H. Woolsey on the subject of the treatment of insane patients, which he expressed at the meeting of the California Medical Society two days ago have occasioned considerable talk in medical circles in this city.

Dr. Woolsey was interviewed by a Tribune reporter today in reference to the question, and opened the conversation by referring to the paper on the care of the insane by Dr. Gardner of the Napa Insane Asylum.

"The citizens of this State," he said, "and the profession are to be congratulated upon the enactment of the bill which Dr. Gardner had considered—a bill for the establishment of a commission to supervise and regulate all of the asylums of the State and all matters pertaining to the examining and committment of the insane.

"That there is need of a more systematic method of dealing with the insane there can be no question, and it is evident that some measure is necessary, when Dr. Gardner espoused the cause, he being at the head of the largest asylum.

"Dr. Gardner has considered at some length the matter of sentiment as to length the matter of sentiment as to pending examination and commitment to asylums, and suggests that it will be the purpose of the commission to regulate such matters, and perhaps furnish special accommodations for those suspected of insanity. This will increase the expense of dealing with these people, which is already too great, and has come to be a grievous burden upon the tax-payers—upon the same tax-payers of the State.

MEDICAL SPECIALISTS.

"It is a tendency in medicine for specialists to concentrate more and more their attention to their particular specialisms. The oculist comes to forget that systemic disturbances effect the eye, and so it is a singular fact that those who are concerned in the care of the insane, and, I may add, those who are devoted to other eleemosinary institutions, come to consider that the wheels of government and all of the industrial activities of a people should move toward the special end of caring for the inmates under their supervision.

"If this commission shall regulate insane asylums of this State so as to economize the management and lessen the burdens of the tax-payer, and stop the increase of insanity, it will do a service to California and to humanity.

"At the present rate of increase of insanity in this State, it is only a question of time, and a not very distant time at that, when the insane will so far outnumber the sane that instead of providing asylums for the insane they will have to be turned at large and the sane people establish asylums for their own protection. This is the psychological view of this question. The financial view is that the sane people of this State will not much longer be able to provide food and care for the insane.

PREVENTING INSANITY.

"Some thing ought to be done to arrest the progress of insanity. Victoria C. Woodhull, a few years ago, had the courage to suggest that those who were committed to the insane asylums should be surgically operated upon in such a way as to prevent the possibility of their procreating their kind. This, I submit, is the only certain way of dealing with this question. It is in the interests of humanity and in the interests of the State that this commission or the government should adopt this means. If a man or woman who has become insane to the extent of commitment to an asylum shall recover to the extent of being discharged therefrom, and then have offspring, the child will almost certainly inherit an unstable nervous organization, and if it does not become insane it will have some form of neurosis, and be yet liable to transmit insanity to its offspring.

NECESSARY LEGISLATION.

"Boards of Health with advanced ideas are creating ordinances to prevent expectoration on the public streets and for the avoidance of other dangers of infection, and a wise provision would be to prevent consumptives from marrying; and, strictly in line with such efforts, would be the rational and certain prevention of the increase of insanity suggested."

"Dr. Gardener has criticised county examiners of the insane specifically for filling out one answer of a blank that a person has not exhibited any homicidal or suicidal evidence, and yet in another answer, expressing the opinion that the individual was dangerous to be at large. He has characterized such conclusions as absurd.

"Now, while I have great deference for Dr. Gardner's opinions on questions pertaining to the insane, I submit that his criticism may not be altogether fair because if a man not a contortionist nor a circus performer, were, while walking along a public thoroughfare—down Market street, for instance in San Francisco—should suddenly become inverted and in the midst of passers-by stand on his head, there is every reason to believe that such a man, notwithstanding the fact that he had never tried to kill anybody nor himself, might suddenly become imbued with such a notion, and it would not be safe to have him at large."

Successful Bombardment by the Greek Warships of Villages on the Gulf of Salonica.

EDHEM PASHA IS ALARMED

He Is Fearful Now of Being Attacked From the Rear.

OSMAN PASHA STARTS OUT

The Hero of Plevna Placed in Command of the Troops.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

ATHENS, April 23—9 A. M.—After the bombardment of Katrina on the Gulf of Salonica by the Greek squadron had put to flight two battalions of Turks and the inhabitants of that place the Greek fleet landed a detachment and found the Turks had left behind immense stores of provisions destined for the armies of Edhem Pasha.

These valuable stores had been left unprotected in the belief by the Turks that the blockade of Greece by the fleets of the Powers would prevent the Greek fleet from attacking Turkish towns in the Gulf of Salonica which are near the railroad to Salonica and which have been used as a point to land stores for the Turkish army and forward them to the front.

The capture of these towns not to mention the loss of stores, places serious difficulty in the path of Edhem Pasha and it is stated here as soon as the Turkish commander-in-chief heard the news of the capture of Platamona and Katrina, he dispatched 10,000 men towards the coast of Macedonia, fearing a flank attack from the Gulf of Salonica.

The Greek fleet in returning from the capture of Katrina bombarded the port of Litchora

A dispatch from Larissa says yesterday after the Greeks fortified Mayreychori, to which place they retreat after evacuating Nezeros, they occupied Ratsina and Hegania

ADVICES FROM CORFU.

CORFU, April 23—The western Greek squadron of warships suspended the bombardment of Prevesa, the Turkish position north of the entrance to the Gulf of Arta and left this morning for Santi Quaratta.

The Greek Minister of Foreign Affairs Issues a Report.

By Associated Press to the Tribune.

LONDON April 23—The Greek Charge d'Affairs here received a dispatch dated Athens today, giving the exact situation on the Thessalian frontier from the Greek standpoint.

It is as follows 'In Thessaly in the direction of Reveni and Boughazi our forces have penetrated into Turkish territory and advanced towards Damasie

"All attacks of the enemy have been repulsed in the direction of Gritzovali

"Our army occupied a strong position at Mati, where there has been fighting since yesterday. Turkish attacks have been repulsed.

"The Greeks had to retire from Nizeros, falling back on the bank of the Derchi, a strong position, which they are now defending.

"In Epirus our army is advancing and has captured Fort Imaret, Fillippiada and several villages.

"The Greeks have also occupied Salagora, capturing three cannon, a number of guns and a quantity of ammunition and provisions.

"The army is now advancing northward

(Signed) "SPOUZES,
'Minister of Foreign Affairs"

According to a dispatch from Athens fighting occurred in the olive groves near Prevessa, between Turks and native Christians.

The Greek forces, it is added, while on the way to Fillippiada, passed a number of charred corpses

The inhabitants of Lakka and Samarina have risen against the Greeks and welcomed the Turks with enthusiasm.

GENERALS CHANGED.

The Turks Are Dissatisfied With the Work of the Leaders

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 23—(Delayed in transmission)—It is stated here that one of the Turkish brigades which has been pushed forward on the plains of Larissa has been unable to advance further owing to floods caused by rains and the consequent rise of the River Salambria.

Edhem Pasha telegraphed asking for the immediate dispatch of pontoons to enable the troops to cross the river, the Greeks having blown up the bridges.

These reports had a very depressing effect here when taken into conjunction with the formidable resistance which the Turks have met with around Tyenavo.

Afternoon—An additional force of Dediffs, or army reserves, has been called out to reinforce the Turkish troops operating against the Greeks.

They consist of the Koniah brigade from Cerarna, a delegation from Samaria belonging to the third army corps, three brigades from the fourth army corps, and a division of the fifth army corps

These men total up seventy-two additional battalions, troops numering 50,400 men

It is now definitely announced that Osman Pasha, the hero of Plevna, has been appointed commander-in-chief of the Turkish army having its headquarters at Elassona.

Edhem Pasha has been recalled.

In addition Saad Edin Pasha has been appointed to the command of the Turkish army having its headquarters at Janina, replacing Ahmed Hifzi Pasha, who is also recalled.

The new commanders start for their posts this evening.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

STOCKTON April 23—The 270 men who were sent to this city by Mayor Phelan of San Francisco, en route for the East, have reached Lodi

They got tired of walking and refused to proceed further.

Last night they tried to take possession of a freight train for Sacramento, but were frustrated by the railroad people, who had the train steam by without stopping

This morning they were more successful, and climbed upon the freight which was to have pulled out at 9 30

Some got on top of the cars and others hung to the sides

The train men acting under the instructions of the agent, refused to take the train out

The unemployed refused to get off the cars

The local authorities were invoked but consisted of only two contables, and they could do nothing with the men.

The train is still there and the men are also firm in their determination

They say they will stay there all summer

They have men begging in the town and practically own the village.

Mr. Wood states that he was consulted by a Mrs. Stevens and a Mrs Ragestraw, who reside in the county of Buckinghamshire, and who represent themselves to be relatives of Bradbury. DENISON RETURNS.

He Chats About Political Affairs at the Capital.

STILL IN THE MINT FIGHT

His Candidacy for the Post Office Simply a "Rumor."

A CALL ON JUDGE M'KENNA

President McKinley Invaded by Hosts of Office Seekers.

Senator Ell Denison has returned from his trip to the East and is brimful of information regarding the status of things political

'I stopped over at Chicago and passed five days at Washington but I did not go on to New York,' he said to a Tribune man this morning. 'I was only gone two weeks altogether, so you can see I had little time to spare.

"The stories that I have withdrawn from the Mint fight and am now a candidate for postmaster of Oakland are not true The Mint matter is not settled yet, and I am still a candidate Mr. Hanna told me that the nomination will not be made for about two months. The only way in which I can see my name was associated with the postoffice was as follows I was talking to Mr. Hilborn and asked him if he had picked out any one for the place. He said 'No, and I won't do so for about two years' The names of A. W. Bishop, W H Friend and S. J. Taylor are mentioned for the office

"I did not see either Judge Waymire or Mr. Leach, although I understood they were about the Capital There are lots of Californians there, and among them I saw George Knight, George Hazelton and Tom Clunie.

"As regards the political prospects of the coast candidates, I can say little. It is a certainty, though, that both Spear and Waymire will be provided for. McLaughlin is fighting Spear hard, but he cannot down him Just what Waymire will get no one seems to know. The Circuit Judgeship matter was not much discussed.

'I called on Attorney-General McKenna and found him feeling well, though he is being worked to death. The cases of his department are very heavy, and he cannot possibly keep up the pace he has started

"I had the pleasure of a chat with the President He is looking well and happy, despite the fact that he is bothered by an army of office-seekers He knew me, and laughed as Senator Perkins remarked that I was the man who had sent him the live eagle.

"The White House is simply invaded by office seekers They come in droves and the throng is almost as great as on an inauguration day The President is very easily seen, for he comes right out in the reception room and mingles with the callers, shaking hands and chatting here and there.

'It is no joke to stay in Washington nowadays In the first class hotels they charge $7 or $8 a day for room and board, and for the suite of rooms at the Shoreham that I engaged for my son and myself they charged $10 a day without board. Restaurant living is high and what would cost about 90 cents in San Francisco cannot be got for less than $1 75.

'Washington, though, is a charming residence city One thing that impresses the visitor is that the electric cars are operated by under-ground wires, the trolley being run from the car through a slot in the track. This does away with the poles and other unpleasant accessories of the general system

The new Library building is a splendid structure It cost $6 000 000 and is about ready for occupancy. The exterior is granite with a huge dome covered with gold and the inside is all white and blue marble It is about as large as the State Capitol at Sacramento

"I enjoyed my trip thoroughly and was much interested in the sessions of Congress Secretary of State Sherman is a busy man, and the cares of public life are beginning to tell on him, for he has aged a good deal in the last few years I did not see Justice Field and all I know about his probable retirement is what I read in the newspapers."

HE FEARED NEITHER GOD NOR MAN.

Frank Kloss Feels the Clutch of the Hangman's Rope and, as He Promised, Died Game.

NOT A VESTIGE OF FEAR

He Smoked a Cigarette When the Death Warrant Was Brought.

FAREWELLS TO HIS FRIENDS

He Nodded and Smiled as the Black Cap Was Put on.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, April 24.—Frank Cooney Kloss was hanged promptly at 10 30 this morning for the murder of William Deady over two years ago.

Neither the brother nor mother of Kloss has been at the prison since yesterday, and the execution was witnessed only by the prison officials, physicians and newspaper men.

As Kloss had boasted, he died game for his brutal and cowardly murder of his victim.

He was cool to the last.

Death was almost instantaneous.

At twenty minutes past 10 Warden Hale went to the cell of the condemned man to read the death warrant.

The prisoner was talking to Father Lagan, his spiritual adviser, at the same time smoking a cigarette.

He told Warden Hale not to read the warrant.

The warden asked him if he waived the reading

"Yes," he replied.

The guards at once strapped Kloss's hands to his sides and put a leather belt about his ankles.

Fathers Lagan and Eagan stood one on each side of him.

TO THE GALLOWS.

The guards grouped themselves about and the march to the gallows was begun

The priests chanted the prayers for the dying

It was exactly half-past ten o'clock when Kloss was placed upon the trap.

Father Lagan stepped forward and requested the attention of the spectators.

He said that Kloss had asked him to deny the assertion which appeared lately in some of the newspapers regarding the brutal treatment of his mother by the murderer

Father Lagan asked the newspapers to do justice to a man who denied with dying breath the story of his unfilial conduct.

When the clergyman concluded, the rope was put upon Kloss's neck and the black cap drawn over his head.

Through it all the man was perfect master of himself

Just before the cap was pulled over his eyes he recognized Chief Jailer Sattler of the county jail. He smiled and nodded as though he was passing a friend on the street.

His eye then lighted upon another acquaintance, to whom he bowed.

The black cloth shut the world from his gaze forever.

When everything was adjusted, Warden Hale raised his hand, the three men hidden in the box cut the ropes, the trap fell, and the body of Frank Kloss was shot into the air.

There was not a quiver of pain or the slightest struggle.

The rope swayed for a moment and then the body hung like the pendulum of a clock stopped

Dr Lawlor, the prison surgeon, and his assistants for the occasion, Doctors Wickham and Jones of San Rafael, and Mattner, Cook and Douglas of San Francisco, felt the pulses and listened for the respiration

All action in the body ceased at the end of twelve minutes.

A second after the trap opened Kloss was insensible and practically dead.

The physicians, all of whom have attended the previous executions at the prison, are unanimous that this was the most successful hanging of the series.

There have been in all fourteen executions at San Quentin.

THE STORY OF THE CRIME.

The story of the murder is brief and brutal. Kloss was drunk when he went into a Hayes Valley saloon, San Francisco, where he found Deady asleep with his head thrown back, exposing a tempting display of unprotected neck. Kloss walked up to Deady, who he knew slightly, and shook him.

Deady did not wake, whereupon Kloss pulled a knife, and saying to the saloon-keeper, "I'll wake the —— up," drew his knife across the man's throat. The jugular vein was severed, and Deady lived but a few hours. This occurred April 18, 1895.

The trial in Department 12 of the Superior Court resulted in a verdict of guilty, and Judge Bahrs pronounced the death sentence on Kloss on the 7th of December, 1895.

Shortly after the verdict had been rendered the foreman of the jury, a citizen named Leipsic, made an extraordinary statement. He said that he had voted for the death penalty under a misapprehension, not knowing that the absence of recommendation made the death sentence inevitable. Leipsic even made an affidavit to that effect, and the defendant's attorneys used it as the basis of a plea to have the judgment set aside and a new trial ordered. Judge Bahrs, however, denied the motion on the ground that a juror was not permitted to impeach his own verdict.

From this judgment and order Kloss appealed to the Supreme Court. That tribunal decided that Judge Bahrs was right, and affirmed the judgment. Judge Bahrs having been assigned to a civil department the duty of re-sentencing Kloss devolved upon Judge Cook.

Attorney Wilson made a motion for a new trial, but Deputy District Attorney Hosmer objected and the request was denied by the court. When Kloss was asked if he had anything to say why the judgment of the law should not be pronounced against him he faced the Judge in a dogged, sullen manner and in a fierce tone fairly hissed:

"Yes; I've lots to say. But what's the use? It doesn't do any good.

"But I would like to say that I've not been treated with justice by the District Attorney in this case. I had a most unfair trial. And the foreman of the jury swore to something he didn't know he was swearing to. Besides, the jury wasn't polled properly after the verdict was given.

'I think it is high time that the Government and the public at large did away with juries altogether, and that a man could be tried by a judge. Then perhaps he could get a fair trial.

"But these juries" and here Kloss grew excited and his voice rose, "ornary old two-dollar-and-a-half-a-day bums; that's what they are! —— perjurers, ready to swear a man's life away or give it away on a minute's notice.

"That's all I have to say. I've nothing against you, Mr. Judge, and I thank you for your treatment of me. Now I'm ready for you."

Judge Cook then pronounced the sentence of death, to take effect on Friday, April 23d. Judge Cook looked earnestly at the prisoner and said "May God have mercy on your soul"

"And on my enemies, too," said Kloss, as he turned away and held out his hands to be gyved.

As Kloss was conducted from the room he confided to Chief Deputy Clerk Harry Piper that he would like to get one lick on the nose of Assistant District Attorney Hosmer, who conducted the prosecution. He laughed at what he considered his own witticism in this regard, and walked smilingly down the corridor toward the iron cells in the basement of the City Hall.

A few days ago when the crippled and aged mother of the condemned man went to San Quentin to bid him good-by his curses and foul words shouted at her shocked the death watch as few incidents have power to do

The House at Washington Notices the Death of Holman.

Representatives to Attend the Grant Monument Exercises.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—The desk of the late Judge Holman was today covered with a black pall of mourning, upon which were strewn lilies of the valley and hyacinths. Immediately after the reading of the journal, Bland, Democrat, of Missouri, offered a resolution relative to the suits to foreclose the first mortgage on the Union Pacific Railway, and calling on the Attorney General for information as to what steps had been taken to protect the interests of the Government, so modified as to strike out the clause directing the Speaker to appoint immediately a Committee on Pacific Railroads

The House adopted a resolution for the appointment of a committee of twenty-five members, of which the Speaker shall be chairman, to attend the Grant tomb exercises next Tuesday.

The House also asked for three days' adjournment next week, with the understanding that no business shall be transacted.

THE TURKS BEAT A HOT RETREAT.

forcing back the Greeks from their position on the heights above Turnavo and are now preparing for a final advance on Larissa.

About 4 o'clock the inhabitants of Turnavo could be seen leaving the town and retreating in wild confusion along the Larissa road. The Greek troops fell back in good order and occupied with four batteries of artillery the low hill between Tyrnavo and Larissa. There they prepared to offer further resistance.

While they were deploying their guns and taking the range several battalions of Turkish infantry with five batteries of artillery moved slowly down the slopes of Milouna Pass toward the plain. Their object was to support the forces of cavalry engaged in making a reconnaissance.

Hitherto the ground had been too uneven to employ cavalry, but now that we are gaining the famous plains of Thessaly, the Turkish mounted men will be kept hard at work. They are well mounted, keen and eager to bear their full share of the defense of the country. Indeed, the spirit of our troops is above all reproach.

Presently our artillery halted, unlimbered upon the Greeks and a vigorous artillery duel commenced The spectacle was a magnificent one from the heights which seemed to have been expressly designed to serve as an amphitheatre.

We looked down on the battle raging at our feet and were close to Marshal Edhem Pasha and his staff, while in all directions the hills were crowded with Turkish soldiers, gazing wistfully at the fight. The Marshal and his officers were of the opinion that Larissa had been virtually taken now that Milouna Pass was in the hands of their men. Edhem Pasha's plans have hitherto been crowned with complete success.

Below us were serpentine lines of bayonets glinting in the bright sun and standing out from the deep green of the plains and dull brown of the bare, rocky hill sides. They moved with even cadence toward Tyrnavo. From the mouth of the guns in action below came jets of fire and spurts of white smoke or grey dust, as the recoil of the weapons tore up the ground. Here and there shells were bursting. Few reached our men, however, as the distance was too great and we suffered but little, though I saw a few men knocked over by bursting schrapnell and there were several narrow escapes. More than once a shell exploded within a very few yards of our regiments without doing any harm, but splinters and schrapnell have come uncomfortably near. The hill from which the Greeks are firing lies about half way between this place and Larissa.

Soon the Turkish batteries limbered up, finding that the shells dropped short, and moved up, and then opened up again. Its fire was better directed than that of the Greeks. Our infantry gave its support and commenced a furious fire, to which the Greeks replied.

The aim of Edhem Pasha is not as yet to fight a decisive battle. He has a strategic success of the utmost importance by holding the Greeks in front, while in lines parellel to our advance his other columns move forward by Damasi or Tyrnavo. He has also ascertained the strength of the Greeks.

"Our troops are now fast converging on Tyrnavo, and we shall probably occupy the town tonight. From the position which we now occupy, Larissa with its houses is embosomed amid the green trees and glistening in the sun, as I send this dispatch.

OFF TO THE WAR.

A Band of Greek Patriots Set Forth From Chicago.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

CHICAGO, April 23.—Two hundred Greeks said good-bye to Chicago last evening, and amid scenes of the wildest enthusiasm started for the seat of war in their native country. Before another week has passed it is altogether probable that Chicago will not have a score of Greeks within her limits. Already arrangements are under way for the departure of another party of 200 Grecian patriots who will soon leave.

The little church on Kenzie street was crowded with Greeks whose excited manner told of the strains under which they were laboring. The church was the place of final preparation for the long journey. It is here that Father Phiambolis, the priest in charge, has been reading to them daily accounts in the newspapers of the progress of the war in their fatherland, and it was from his lips that they received a parting blessing and heard a prayer offered up for their safe return to their adopted country.

Professors and students at the University of Chicago have taken up the battle cry of the struggling Greeks Due to the enthusiasm which developed yesterday on the campus, influential members of the faculty resolved to furnish an opportunity for a public indorsement of the Grecian cause by arranging for a mass meeting to be held this evening. Among the propositions to be considered at the meeting will be a plan to devise methods for raising money for the transportation of Greek volunteers to Athens.

NEWS FROM TERELL.

He Notifies Secretary Sherman of Osman Pasha's Departure

By Associated Press to the Tribune.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Secretary Sherman has received a cablegram from Minister Terell at Constantinople under date of yesterday, stating that Osman Pasha, the old hero of the Turkish defense at Plevna, left Constantinople last night to assume command of the Turkish army in the field. The cablegram is regarded here as significant of some change of plans on the part of the Turks.

Representative Maguire of California today introduced a resolution in the House declaring that the war between Turkey and Greece was a war between the Moslem and the Christian civilization, and directing that the sympathy of the United States be extended to Greece with the hope that her struggle may be successful.

The resolution was referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs, but as that committee is not appointed no action can be taken at present.

Thomas Pacheco Believes He Can Unearth a Spanish Hoard.

Another fortune hunter is searching Oakland for hidden treasures of old Spanish days. He is Thomas Pacheco and claims to have been told of a cached hoard by a conscience-stricken Spaniard who is dying in a rural hut near Monterey.

Pacheco believes the money, which is supposed to be the fruits of a robbery, is buried on Clay, between First and Seventh streets, under a spreading oak which has since been laid low. Attorney Garrity has been retained to protect the treasure-hunter in his search, and inquiries have been made at the Street Superintendent's office as to the right to dig up streets.

Pacheco is a son of the late Fernando Pacheco of Contra Costa.

Four or five years ago some buried treasure was unearthed by house-movers at the corner of Tenth and Clay streets.

TEACHERS' SALARIES.

Supt. McClymonds Sheds Some Light on the Mixed Subject

In regard to the fear expressed by many of the public school teachers that their June salaries might not be paid, Superintendent of Schools McClymonds has the following to say.

"The teachers are paid by the school year of forty-two weeks The idea that the whole month's salary will not be paid is incorrect If there is a deficiency in the school fund the teachers will be paid as much as the apportionment allows. If the schools are closed a week sooner than was expected, a week's salary only will be deducted, provided that there is enough in the fund to pay the salaries up to that time."

A PENSION LAW DEFECT.

Are High School Teachers Eligible to Its Benefits?

The Question Now Being Looked Into by the District Attorney.

The question has been raised whether the teachers' pension law will be applicable to High School teachers in Oakland.

The bill provides that "all public school teachers of California" may take advantage of the measure. When a teacher joins, he or she files an application with the Board of Education and then the Secretary of the Board must designate on the face of her monthly warrant the amount to be paid into the fund.

The County Treasurer is made custodian of the money and he alone can handle it.

The salaries of the Oakland High School teachers are paid from city funds and the question arises has the City Treasurer, who pays the warrants, the right to take out the monthly amount for the pension fund? The City Treasurer is not mentioned in the act at all, and a grave doubt exists as to whether the High School teachers can have their contributions received at all.

They can, if they desire, collect the money and turn it over to the County Treasurer. Mr. Sanford is willing to receive it, but the legality of such a proceeding is doubted. For the same reason, it is questionable whether the pensioned High School teachers can draw benefits from the County Treasurer's receipts.

In the case of the Union High Schools the matter is different, for the salaries in those institutions are paid by the county.

Miss Wythe, of the High School, brought the question to the attention of County Superintendent of Schools Garlick and he has referred it to District Attorney Snook.

A FIGHT FOR A BABY.

W. F. Barker's Grievance Against the Alameda Home

W. F. Baker has a grievance against the Alameda Home for Friendless Children and intends to appeal to the courts for protection His wife and baby went to the home recently where, it is alleged, the former was to assist the matron. Soon after their arrival, both were stricken down with measles The baby is now at the point of death and the father declares that the child has not only been neglected but it has been kept there contrary to his wishes He will get out a writ of habeas corpus in order to obtain possession of the infant.

He makes some sensational allegations against the managers of the home. He declares that they have kept his wife and baby contrary to his wishes and although he has provided a comfortable home for them on Franklin street, the matron, Mrs. Adams, has refused to allow them to depart. He called at the home last night but was refused admittance to see his baby boy, although the child was then believed to be dying.

"The matron said I had insulted the management of the home by sending a magnetic healer to treat my baby," said Baker today. "I never sent any healer and knew nothing about any such visit. I wanted to see my sick baby but they barred me out for that reason. I myself am a magnetic healer but I had intrusted the care of the child to Dr Anna Wightman and I feel sure that she has done the best she could for the baby. The child is dying because it was neglected in the early stage of the disease and this was the fault of the matron."

Snook Was Right.

District Attorney Snook is receiving the commendations of taxpayers for the stand he took in refusing to put the county to expense in the Von Arnold matter. He, as usual, took the sensible view of the situation.

A DEFENSE OF DURRANT.

Comments by One Who Does Not Think the Trial Was Fair.

A Slight Analysis of Some of the Principal Points of Evidence.

Editor Tribune—Sir:—I quote from your editorial column of yesterday: "The American love of fair play is counteracting the efforts of those who are trying to hurry Durrant to the gallows. The persecution business has been overdone and is bringing about a reaction of sentiment in the condemned man's favor.

For one, Mr. Editor, I heartily concur. From the day that Durrant was taken into custody as the suspected murderer of Minnie Williams, up to the day of his conviction, the press of San Francisco allied with the detective force, prejudged him guilty, and by every resource known to journalism, fair, foul and otherwise persecuted him, and molded public sentiment against him. Such a spirit of rivalry was engendered among the "pencil pushers as to who should secure for his paper the most startling and original story bearing on the case, that in many instances columns of stuff were published as scoops that proved to be pure fabrications, wholly figments of the superheated imagination of the ambitious knight of the faber.

To my mind, the Cunningham episode should have been sufficient cause for that jury of supposedly intelligent, unbiased, fair-minded men to have reflected well and long upon the influence of the press of San Francisco exerted upon the minds of many of the witnesses for the prosecution.

I happened to witness a meeting between that female reporter and Prosecuting Attorney Barnes in the court of the Palace Hotel one day, when she was figuring so prominently in the case. They were both considerably agitated, and repaired to the grill-room. I have since often regretted that I did not do a little gratuitous detective work at that time. It might have come to my hand to pen a real true story as a side light on a dark passage that ultimately led to the conviction of Durrant.

Sir, I would not undertake to go into the question of the guilt or innocence of the condemned young man, but I unhesitatingly aver it was my belief that in the opinion of the majority of thinking people the newspapers of San Francisco rendered it impossible for him to receive a fair, impartial trial such as any man would expect to receive and would be entitled to receive, were he charged with so revolting a crime.

Not for a moment questioning the honesty, the purity of motive or the earnest conviction of the guilt of the accused on the part of the jury individually and collectively, yet I have ever been of the opinion that not one of those twelve men had the temerity to so much as intimate that he had reasons to doubt. So intensely bitter was the feeling toward Durrant, and so zealously had the San Francisco press pandered to that feeling, it was as much as a man's life was worth to say or do anything counter thereto in an honest endeavor to secure a fair administration of the law, and a meteing out of justice.

I am not a lawyer, Mr. Editor, but I lay claim to an average modicum of common sense, and did I have the space at my disposal would take up certain essential links as they were forged in that chain of circumstantial evidence, and by critical analysis think those could be discovered to the mind of any unprejudiced person the fatal weakness in such links, due to the questionable manner in which the material out of which they were made was first had, and latterly shaped up. But abler minds, and more deft artisans at the process of unwelding false joints in such a chain, having failed to make any impression upon the majority of the learned, august gentlemen who constitute the highest State tribunal (albeit they are but men and acknowledged fallible.) What profiteth it for one not skilled in the craft to wield the hammer of logic and the cold chisel of analysis, however good the chances that he might discover the faulty joining of the two ends of a link now and then. No chain is stronger than the weakest link; break one, and it ceases to be a chain until that link is re-welded or a new one supplied and the connection made between the two connecting links on either side. In the humble judgment of this correspondent, from a dispassionate, unprejudicial, common sense point of view, there are more links than one in that marvelous chain forged about Durrant, that will not bear the hard straining of critical, rational analysis. What I could advance in support of this position would fill columns of your paper.

I will only advert in closing, to the very unquestionable and reprehensible method of identification that was employed by the detectives when the schoolmates of Blanche Lamont who claimed to have seen her in the company of Durrant, were required to identify him.

It will be remembered that Durrant was in custody in the office of the Chief of Police. His likeness had been the day before published in the papers, with the positive statement that he was the murderer. Of course all of those girls had seen that likeness and knew that they were going to look at the original, who, according to a united press, was the undoubted fiend. They were walked into the room where Durrant was, and were asked if that, (pointing to him) was the person they saw on the car with Blanche Lamont.

Now, how should this identification have been had to conform to commonsense, humane ideas of propriety, and with due regard to justice? My view of this very vital preliminary matter was at the time and yet is, that there should have been at least half a dozen young men of about the stature of Durrant, coaoted and hatted as he was, sitting together in one room with Durrant. Each one of those girls should have been taken separately into the presence of those seven young men and required to point out the one whom she saw with Blanche Lamont. The girl after making her identification should not have been allowed to see her companions who were yet to identify. This method should have been pursued until all had made their identification. Should they all have pointed out the same young man, this would have been actual, honest and trustworthy identification. In order to have made it the more thorough and just there should not have been published any likeness (assuming that it was a likeness) of Durrant without publishing the likeness of others who were to be used for the purpose of identifying the real suspect.

Had such a course been pursued, and those three girls should have pointed out Durrant as the person whom they saw with Blanche, then there could not have been a shadow of doubt about his identity insofar as their knowledge went.

As it was,—well, it always seemed to me that the detectives had but one desire, and that was to fasten the guilt on Durrant, despite the fact that one of their number—when more honest than discreet, told his chief that when the belfry was first entered there were well defined tracks in the dust on the floor and on the stairs, such tracks of a size that would be made by a number 8 or 9 shoe. Durrant wore a number 6 shoe. But pardon me, I am prone to trespass.

A healthy baby is the real jewel for which the wedding ring is only the setting. There is no place in Nature's economy for a childless marriage. Wedded couples that are childless are never truly married. A baby is the tie that binds. The baby is the pledge that makes husband and wife one in nature and in fact, and that teaches mutual self-sacrifice and sympathy. Thousands of couples are childless because of the wife's neglect of her health as a woman. Too few women fully appreciate the importance of keeping healthy and vigorous the organs upon which motherhood is dependent. As a consequence, they are weak where they should be strong, and motherhood is either an impossibility or a torturesome and dangerous ordeal. This is easily remedied.

The most wonderful medicine for women is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It acts directly and only on those delicate organs upon which the perpetuation of the race depends. It allays inflammation, soothes pain and makes those organs healthy and vigorous. It prepares for motherhood. It makes the expectant period comfortable. It makes baby's coming easy and almost painless and insures health in both mother and child. Druggists sell it.

"I take pleasure in expressing my faith in your 'Favorite Prescription,'" writes Miss Edith Cain, of Clinton, Allegheny Co., Pa. "After two years of suffering I began taking Dr. Pierce's medicine and now I am entirely cured. I had been troubled with displacement of internal organs for some time and also with ulcerative weakness, but now I am well and happy. I will cheerfully recommend Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription to all invalid ladies."

The profit side of life is health. The balance is written in the rich, red, pure blood of health. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation and make the blood rich and pure. They never gripe. By druggists.

LITERARY NOTES.

The New York Critic of April 3rd devotes seven pages to an account of the dinner given in honor of the veteran poet, Richard Henry Stoddard, by the Authors' Club, on March 25th, at the Hotel Savoy, New York. It prints in full the opening speech of Mr. E. C. Stedman, who presided; the poem recited by Mr. Stoddard, which is called "A Curtain Call," and is typical of the man; part of a speech by Mr. R. W. Gilder, who called attention to some of the poet's noblest verse; and the messages of regret and congratulation from American and foreign authors who were unable to be present, together with poems in honor of the bard by Edith M. Thomas and James Whitcomb Riley. The report is worthy of the occasion, which marks a mile-stone in the progress of American letters. An excellent portrait-group of Mr. Stoddard, Mrs. Stoddard (who was present at the dinner and shared her husband's honors), and their son, Mr. Lorimer Stoddard (the successful dramatizer of Mr. Hardy's "Tess") is printed with the account.

We are glad to learn that the Macmillan Company has in preparation a cheaper edition of Miss Kingsley's Travels in West Africa, Congo Francais, Corisco and Cameroons. This book, whose author is a niece of the Rev. Charles Kingsley, is one of the brightest books of travel ever published, and has attracted a great deal of notice. In England it is already in its fifth edition, here its price, $6.50, has made it move more slowly than will be the case when it is issued in a less costly form.

No series of articles that Scribner has published has attracted more comment from successful men than that on "The Conduct of Great Businesses." Letters are received every day in praise of the articles. The fourth in the series (May issue) on "The Working of a Bank," by Charles D. Lanier, is one of the most effective, because the subject is so little known, even by business men. Great financiers have furnished the author with valuable information. The pictures are from famous New York bank buildings.

St. Mary's Athletes.

The annual field day of St. Mary's College will be held on May 8th. The event of considerable interest will be the tug-of-war between the classes of '98 and '99. Frank Silva will captain the former, while W. J. McCarthy has charge of the latter. A banquet will be served in the evening.

THE HUGHES CONCERT.

A Large Audience Warmly Greets the New Society.

An Interesting Programme With the Names of the Club Members.

The second concert of the season given by the Hughes Club, packed the First Unitarian Church to the doors last night. The audience was decidedly a select one and the excellent programme presented received well-merited praise.

There were no floral decorations of any kind, but the sixty-five pretty ladies who compose the club proved sufficient embellishment, dressed as they were in light-colored gowns of delicate hue.

The chorus, under the leadership of D. P. Hughes, showed much improvement since the first concert. The precision and shading of the numbers was particularly good. Barring too much volume in the first soprano, the parts were well balanced and the singers showed the results of careful training.

The first number, the "Spinning Chorus," was not as well rendered as some of the others. A slight nervousness was possibly responsible for two much force from some and not enough from others.

In the "Bobolink's Song" which followed, the vocalists were more at their ease and an excellent rendition was the result.

Mrs. C. A. Allardyce's songs were well received. She gave two numbers, the last one being more to the liking of the audience.

Llewellyn Hughes received quite an ovation. He is undoubtedly a very promising vocalist. The young man shows a thorough knowledge of his instrument and is certainly worthy of more recognition than he receives. He was obliged to respond to two encores.

"The Birth of the Opal," by the club, with a 'cello obligato by Frank Howard, was one of the pleasing features of the evening, though the following chorus, "Now Is the Month of Maying," was very prettily sung.

Mrs. A. A. Dewing as usual made a most favorable impression, singing "The Swallow," with a violin obligato by Llewellyn Hughes. The violin was a little too prominent for the voice, but otherwise the selection was very pleasing. The encore was also artistically rendered.

The gem of the evening was a lullaby entitled "Mother's Song," by Neidlinger. It was a dainty little thing, giving ample opportunity for good work from the second alto and the young ladies made the most of it. The crooning obligato and accompaniment by the other singers put the finishing touch to a truly excellent number.

George B. McBride sang the "Mighty Deep" and "'Tis But a Dream" in good style and proved himself possessed of a rich voice, though he evidently fails to make the most of it.

The last number on the programme, "Waves of the Danube," was somewhat of a disappointment after the other songs. It was light and fairly well sung, but was hardly the finale expected.

Withal the concert was a flattering success, both musically and financially, and credit is due Mr. Hughes for the efficient training he has given the chorus.

The programme was as follows:

"Spinning Chorus" ....R. Wagner
"Bobolink's Song" ....S. A. Emery
(a) Meadow Sweet..........J. H. Brewer
(b) Spring Song ....Mendelssohn
"Summer Night" ....Niels Gade
"Souvenir de Bade" ....H. Leonard
"Birth of the Opal" ....C. H. Reed
"Now is the Month of Maying" ....T. Strong
"The Swallow" ....Piatti
"Mother's Song" ....Neidlinger
"The Mighty Deep" ....W. H. Jude
"Waves of the Danube" ....Ivanovia

The expression "bringing down the house" is no longer metaphorical, after Mr. Bryan's recent experience.

The Kentuckians are hard to please. They wouldn't give a Republican a chance to go to the United States Senate and now they are doing the same with the Democratic candidate.

It is easy to figure out which way England wants the tide of conquest to turn. Nearly all the Turkish bonds are held in London, and Threadneedle street controls the situation. It is another instance of Christianity having to bow before Mammon.

The recent article in the Salt Lake Tribune entitled "Carrying too Much Steam" had no local significance. It referred to ex-Secretary Morton's statement that the current expenses of the government per capita are three times greater now than in 1840.

Bicycle thieves in Bakersfield are obliging. The last two arrested, not only confessed their crimes, but they reduced them to writing, giving details and accomplices and methods of working, so that their confessions read like "informations" in felony cases.

Mr. Rat of Reno County, Kansas, recently asked the Legislature to authorize him to change his name. By way of a joke the Legislature refused. Most of the members pronounced Mr. Rat's name when they read the bill. This is worse than anything at Sacramento.

The San Jacinto Register sometimes hits the nail very hard on the head. Its latest is:

"If there is one man in this county who is doing well under a gold standard it is William J. Bryan. He admits to having made $16,000 out of his new book last month. Bryan is the legitimate successor of Phineas T. Barnum."

The copy reader of the Salinas Journal must be courting a libel suit. We read:

"A very pleasant gathering was held at the residence of Rev. George McCormick, D. D., last night to commemorate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the marriage of Rev. and Mrs. McCormick. After hearty congratulations to the host and hostess, the happy couple separated."

Alamedans who contemplated catching butterflies that have stings should heed the following from the Chicago Times-Herald:

"A Boston paper says: 'Spring is here at last. A butterfly was caught at the South End yesterday.' This may be the proper way to catch a butterfly, but when you grasp it is better to catch it about the middle, shifting northwesterly toward the head."

Here is a contribution willingly offered to the Argus' "Whopper" department: "A Brentwood farmer was in town yesterday and said: 'It's kind o' funny but nevertheless a fact that since the agitating of the Dingley tariff bill my sheep have actually grown about a foot higher and twice as wide as they were a year ago. I think everything down my way for the next four years will be all wool and a yard wide.'"

Debts do not trouble Healdsburg. The Enterprise says:

"San Francisco has given up the idea of a flower show this year. The executive committee displayed excellent judgment. The fiesta business has been overdone in California, and after the splendid fete given in this city last May, it is useless for cities in San Francisco's class to compete with us. The only distressing feature of Healdsburg's festival was the deficit, and that annoys no one save the executive committee."

There must be a scarcity of flowers at Colusa. Surely nothing else could have prompted the Sun man to print this:

"Will not our teachers tell our children how wrong it is to reach over a fence or pull a flower that hangs outside from a shrub that is not theirs. Parents should see to this, but it seems they do not. A flower near the fence is as much the property of the owner as if it grew back twenty feet. Complaints are coming in from everywhere. If you have no flowers and want them, your neighbor will share with you."

Supervisor Mitchell must be a very much abused man. At the recent conference of Supervisors at Los Angeles the Express reports him as follows:

"Mr. Mitchell of Alameda stated that a great source of annoyance to the Board of this county was the question of caring for indigents. The system used by Los Angeles County he commended strongly, and said he would recommend the members of his Board to adopt similar methods. 'These indigents haunt me by night and persecute me at home and in my store,' said Mr. Mitchell in conclusion, 'and while I used to think a Supervisor was amply repaid for his duties, I have changed my mind.'"

THE "GREATER OAKLAND."

Alameda is up in arms against the suggestion in the annual report of the Oakland Board of Trade that the day is coming when Oakland, Alameda, Berkeley, Fruitvale and other outlying districts will be consolidated. The outcry is not only against the probability that Alameda may some day be merged in the manner stated, but is also in the nature of objections to Oakland's extending her boundary line in any direction whatever.

The accusation that Oakland is trying to "gobble up" all the territory contiguous to her boundary line is not true. It is simply a case of reciprocity—the districts in question want to come in and Oakland is glad to welcome them. No one can question the benefits that have been received by the section north of Lake Merritt, that was annexed a few years ago, and the residents of the territory now endeavoring to get within the fold are doing so of their own accord. Oakland does not send agents out endeavoring to stir up a feeling that will lead to an annexation election; she simply notifies any and all of her neighbors that she is willing to spread her sheltering wing over those who may desire her protection. It is surely better for a residence section that is without police and fire facilities and that cannot enjoy the street and sewer facilities so near at hand to join hands with a city that is able to furnish all these benefits, and though it is true that every addition helps to build up the town, it is also a fact that those dwelling in the newly gained territory also add to their own prosperity.

Whether or not Berkeley, Alameda and Fruitvale will ever be part of the "Greater Oakland" suggested by the Board of Trade is a question that cannot be answered now. The only point desired to be made is that the Alamedans are not making a fair statement of facts when they accuse Oakland of attempting to "gobble up" everything in sight, for her own aggrandisement and at the expense of others.

Who says baseball no longer stirs the California heart? Read this from the Los Angeles Times:

"Riverside has accepted San Bernardino's challenge to play baseball for a purse of $150. The money is up and so is the enthusiasm of the citizens of the rival towns. The game will be called at San Bernardino May 2d, when all business will be suspended in the two counties, while their respective claims to prowess on the diamond are being decided. Some of the Demopops are thinking about petitioning Gov. Budd to declare the day a State holiday."

Secretary Sherman has accomplished his first feat of diplomacy since he has been in the Cabinet. He has assuaged the feelings of the pompous Sir Julian Pauncefote by allowing that gentleman to get up a little side show procession of his own. The diplomatic corps will therefore go to the Grant funeral exercises as a separate contingent.

"Oom" Paul will need all his craftiness to get out of the net that seems to be drawing around him. With the English warships in Delagoa Bay to the north, the Cape troops to the south and the discontented Uitlanders in the Transvaal itself, the situation can scarcely be said to be in his favor.

They hanged a human brute today at San Quentin when Frank Kloss stepped on the scaffold. Whatever little sympathy might have been felt for him was all lost when the papers printed the story of how he cursed and reviled his aged mother when she went to bid him farewell.

They must have "money to burn" in Japan just now, judging by the following item in today's Chronicle: "Japanese officers who fought in the late war against China have petitioned their government to erect a monument to the memory of the horses that fell in battle."

Town Clerk Harris of Napa has no doubt of the lunacy of John Dergane of that town. The crazy man went into the clerks office and called him "father." This may be proof of insanity at Napa, but it would not hold good in all parts of the West.

The Sewall family played the election at both ends and of course had to win. The selection of the son for the Hawaiian mission effectually disposes of one of the important prizes that it was thought might be awarded to California.

That was a doubtful welcome Ambassador Hay received on his arrival in England yesterday. He was presented with a photograph of a painting representing the departure of the Mayflower.

General Miles has received permission to go and see the war. As he is not to start, though, for two weeks, the chances are that it will be all over before he gets there.

The bark of another war-dog is heard on the Turkish frontier. Bulgaria thinks it is a good time to insist on what she wants and has issued an ultimatum on the subject.

Judging by the popular demonstrations indulged in just now at Rome, it is a good advertising card for a monarch to have some one attempt to assassinate him.

The crown worn on State occasions by the German Emperor weighs exactly three pounds.—S. F. Call.

No wonder that his head lies "uneasy."

Keep away from Panama and have a watchful eye on anything coming from there. Yellow fever is raging on the isthmus.

It has at last been discovered why old maids are fond of black cats. According to the Hindoo religion such animals contain the souls of army officers.

This is unkind. In the East the man who tells a story at the breakfast table of having seen the airship is under suspicion of having been drunk overnight.

They have got one of Lord Sholto's check suits at Bakersfield. It is for a dishonored draft of $446.

LOS ANGELES, April 23.—Not as many Oakland people as usual are enjoying the fresh delights of this year's fiesta. At the hotels a few are registered, and these are making up for their lack of numbers by very active participation in anything that is going on.

Mr. and Mrs. John J. Valentine are registered at the Van Nuys, Los Angeles' handsome new hotel. The Van Nuys is opposite the Westminster, is built of cream brick and plate glass and has everything as light and airy and up to date as can be imagined. The Valentines have come down from Palm Springs, where Mrs. Valentine has been staying for some time, and where her husband recently joined her. Mr. Valentine made the closing address at the Bankers' Convention on Tuesday. His subject was Bimetallism, and was an elaborate argument that international bimetallism is an impossibility and not desirable even if possible. The election of officers followed, Mr. Valentine being elected president to succeed N. D. Rideout, of Marysville.

Mr. and Mrs. Trowbridge, of Oakland, formerly of the firm of Kirkland & Trowbridge, are registered at the Westminster. On Monday evening the Trowbridges, accompanied by Mrs. Kirkland, might have been seen in a very jolly party at the Orpheum, viewing a Kiralfy ballet and a number of other interesting things. Mr. Kirkland accompanied them. He left Oakland last year to assume the management of the Owl Drug Company here. They have a large yellow store on Spring street, between Third and Fourth. They appear very prosperous. Mr. Kirkland is already so popular here that he was chosen to serve on the water festival committee. He has made a very efficient member, as he has artistic tastes and has assisted materially in planning the celebration for Friday night.

Another prominent member of the Oakland colony is John Cunningham, who is a citizen of Los Angeles now. He lately sent for all his dogs from Oakland and had them at the last bench show here, where they won most of the prizes, as usual. He is about to send them up to the San Francisco bench show in charge of a keeper. Yesterday the dogs were on exhibition in a hardware store window on Broadway. The four beautiful Great Danes attracted lots of attention. All are maltese in color. They are Queen, Juanita, Juan and Ivan. All are prize winners but Juanita is the star, though she is the smallest of the four. She wins on points. Mr. Cunningham has just been offered $200 for her, but has refused it. He gets $50 apiece for the puppies when they are six months old. He will not part with any of his old stock. At present all the dogs are wearing collars of white kid.

Miss Helen Wright, Paxton Wright's sister, recently spent four months in Los Angeles, but has returned to Oakland now. Her engagement to wed Charles Davis is currently reported here.

Miss Barden, of Oakland, formerly dramatic editor of the Wave, is one of the ladies in waiting for Queen Francisca. On Tuesday evening Miss Borden danced in the minuet which opened the ball, and was the most elaborate court dance ever planned in Southern California. Miss Borden's gown was of cense taffita, with chrysanthemums of darker shade appliqued on. The petticoat was of lighter pink taffeta. The bodice was made with a very long stiff point and was decollete with a filmy fichu of white tulle and white tulle elbow sleeves. The petticoat cleared the floor by five inches, but in the deep courtesies of the minuet swept the polished surface. Very high heeled slippers, pink silk stockings and a white wig completed the costume. Miss Borden danced in the cerise set and afterward at the fancy dress ball.

Miss Bertha Crouch looked very pretty at the ball, though she was not masked. Miss Crouch wore white organdie over pale blue satin, with a pale blue bow in her hair and deep crimson roses. The gown was decollette and short sleeved. Miss Crouch carried a showy boquet of white sweet peas.

Miss Crouch is staying with her father and mother at the Melrose.

Fred May, formerly in partnership with Fred Jacobs in the insurance business, is located in Los Angeles. Mr. May had a severe attack of appendicitis recently, but has quite recovered again, and is looking extremely well. He says that his next move will be to Honolulu.

Mrs. Guy Earl is visiting Los Angeles and was one of the guests at the masked ball. Mrs. Earl's health is much improved and she is able to go out evenings.

Judge F. W. Henshaw has been in the Fiesta City, leaving for home yesterday. C. A. Culver is also registered at one of the leading hotels, as is Miss M. C. Crouch, of Sacramento.

Los Angeles is impressibly gay. The city is more beautifully decorated than ever before, with banners, flags, sashes and hundreds of yards of bunting. Palms and firs are banked on every telegraph pole and masses of tiny pepper branches are used to form canopies over the street.

The masked ball on Tuesday evening was really the opening of the fiesta. The entrance of the Queen, the guards and the court was very impressive. An immense crowd of spectators at five dollars a head viewed the spectacle.

In the upper galleries at popular prices were seated those who were merely on-lookers. These were debarred from the floor and the supper privileges.

Many University Students Whose Appeals Should Be Heard.

The following notice has been issued by the managers of the Students' Aid Society of the University of California:

ELMHURST PLEASES ALL.

New York City Also Has a Suburb of the Name.

Prettily Located Residence Sections That Are Growing Rapidly.

Property owners at Elmhurst, the delightful little suburban locality, a short distance from Oakland, on the San Leandro road, just at this time are congratulating themselves on their selection of a home. The New York Journal recently devoted six columns to the Elmhurst near New York City, after which our Elmhurst was named. The Journal gives it the preference among all the suburban towns lying within a short distance of the great metropolis.

The site of the Elmhurst of this coast was selected with almost the same ideas in mind as those that led to the selection of New York's delightful suburbs. It has easy and rapid communication with this city and San Francisco, natural advantages of location, the best of climate, and entrancing beauty. Regarding the Eastern Elmhurst, the Journal says:

"It is on the Long Island Railroad, and only thirteen minutes' ride from the Long Island ferry. And yet, short though the ride is, it is sufficient to take one from the smoke and dirt and noise of New York and Long Island City to where there is comfort and beauty. To one who goes to Elmhurst from the packed streets of New York, the sky is wonderfully blue, and the sun is strangely bright, and the breezes that come over the rolling sweeps of land that lie between the town and the water of Long Island Sound are laden with an invigorating purity and freshness such as are never possessed by the city air."

All this may be said of our Western Elmhurst and much more. Instead of being far out of town, Elmhurst is within walking distance of Oakland's business center, has all the beauty of the surrounding hills, with the green of the trees and shrubbery and the healthful saline breezes of the bay. A more restful, thought-inspiring location, where, after the busy cares of the day, the city toiler may take his ease, could not be found. Any visitor is struck with the beauty of the spot, especially at this time of the year. The green hills with their myriad poppy patches and the rare ozone which pervades the atmosphere would, of themselves, recommend the site of Elmhurst to even a casual visitor. Especially are property owners in this favored district congratulating themselves and a new activity has been given real estate by the many inquiries regarding Elmhurst.

DETAILS OF THE ATTACK.

The King Proved Himself to Be a Man of Courage.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

NEW YORK, April 25.—A special to the Herald from Rome, gives the following attack on the life of King Humbert:

Indescribable excitement was caused in Rome by the attempt on the life of King Humbert. As his majesty was on his way to the races, a man made a rush at the royal carriage, sprang upon the step and made a stab at the King, with a dagger concealed in his handkerchief. His majesty, however, saw the blow coming and had time to turn it by striking the mans wrist with his elbow, and the dagger buried itself in the cushion of the carriage. The would-be assassin threw away his weapon and tried to flee, but was arrested by the passers-by.

The man is twenty-four years old and named Petro Acciantro. He is a blacksmith by trade.

On his majestys arrival on the race course, he received a perfect ovation. To the persons who came to congratulate him on his escape, the King smilingly said: "These are the little accidents incident to my situation."

A quarter of an hour after the attempt on the King's life, Queen Margherita, who was driving to the races on the same route, passed the open carriage in which the would-be assassin was being conveyed, in the custody of two gendarmes.

"What a sinister face that man has," said her majesty. "What can he have done?" and it was not until she reached the race course that she learned what had happened. Though very pale, her majesty succeeded in concealing her emotion.

The Marquise Di Rudini, who was on the race course, returned to the city after a brief conversation with the King, in company with the prefect of the police.

The would-be murderer declares he had no accomplices, but the police had been on the outlook for him as a dangerous anarchist, and had lost all trace of him on the preceding day. Two men, suspicious in appearance, were noticed on the road, not far from the place where the attempt on the King's life was made.

The return of the sovereigns to the city was marked by the most enthusiastic ovations. On their arrival at the Quirinal a deputation of workingmen asked to be received by the King to congratulate him in the name of the people, and they accompanied his majesty on the balcony where his appearance was greeted by the assembled crowd with the wildest enthusiasm.

A Te Deum will be sung at Sudars, the property of the house of Savoy. The Queen and court will be present, and invitations have been sent, as the church is very small. It is not yet known what attitude the vatican will assume.

The Duchess of Aosta was the first person whom the King told on his arrival on the race course of the danger to which he had been exposed. His majesty spoke of the incident in such a playful way that one of them thought he was joking.

The whole city is decorated in bunting in honor of King Humbert's escape.

THE ASSAILANT INSANE.

Physicians who have been examining Petrio Accirto, the iron worker of Artegna, Provine of Udine, who tried to stab King Humbert yesterday with a dagger while his Majesty was on his way to the races, pronounce him insane.

HONOR WELL DESERVED

Two Popular Californians Are Chosen for High Places.

STATE LIBRARIAN E. D. M'CABE.

His Career Has Been a Continuous Round of Success.

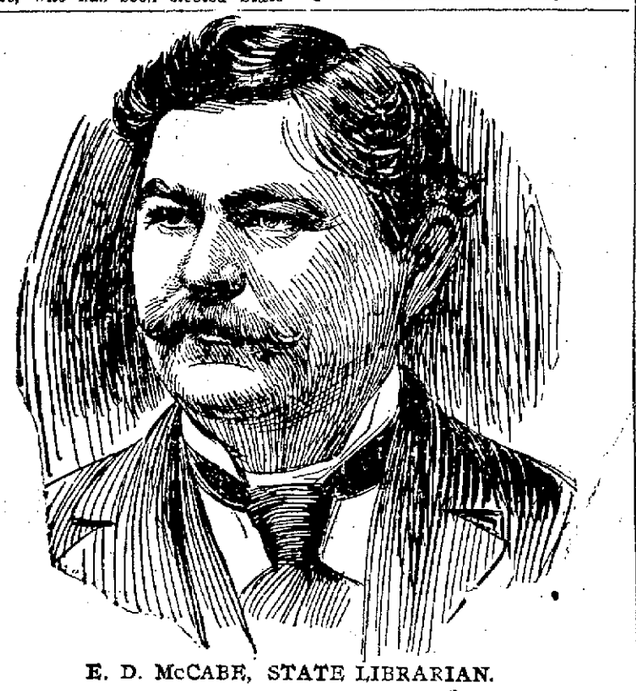
PRIVATE SECRETARY SHIELDS.

A Bright Young Man Whose Worth Has Been Recognized.

It has been said that a prophet is without honor in his own country and though this may be often true it is pleasant to note that there are occasionally instances where the reverse is the case.

A happy illustration of this has just occurred in the State service, for two of the most popular and deserving young men in California have been chosen for high places and in them have been reposed trusts so extensive that no further proof is needed of the honor and esteem in which they are held.

The gentlemen in question are E. D. McCabe, who has been elected State Librarian and Peter J. Shields, who has been appointed private secretary to Governor Budd. Mr. McCabe has for the past two years filled the place now occupied by Mr. Shields and the last-named gentleman during the same period of time was secretary of the Code Commission.



E. D. McCABE, STATE LIBRARIAN.

The changes were brought about this week and were made possible by the election of the then State Librarian, Dr. Mathews to the secretaryship of the Board of Health. McCabe was then promptly elected by the library trustees to fill the vacancy caused by the retirement of Mathews and the same day Governor Budd announced the appointment of Shields in McCabe's place.

Both of these positions are notable in every sense of the word. They are regarded as two of the most trustworthy offices in the State and that the new incumbents are well qualified to fill them is best shown by their records.

M'CABE'S CAREER.

Ed McCabe is a typical native son of California. He comes of a sturdy stock his father being one of the little band of Argonauts, who made the fame of California world-wide. Ed was born in Tuolumne County on April 18, 1859, and passed the first few years of his life there and in Calaveras County. In 1867, the family moved to Stanislaus County and engaged in farming, and amidst all the environments of ranch life Ed. grew up to manhood.

In 1877 he attended the University Mound College, from which institution he graduated in 1880. Though having only just come of age he was, directly on leaving college, appointed Under Sheriff of Stanislaus County under Sheriff A. S. Fulkerth and in that capacity served nearly two years. He was known throughout the San Joaquin County as "the boy sheriff" but though his years were tender he could round up an outlaw just as well as any of the veteran frontiersmen.

With the money he saved from his salary while in the sheriff's office McCabe decided to bring about the ambition of his life. He moved to San Francisco and took up a course at Hastings College of Law, which institution he attended until 1884, the year of his graduation.

His popularity in his home county was so great that almost immediately on his return to Stanislaus he was elected as County Clerk. This was a notable instance of his prestige when one takes into consideration the fact that he had been absent for two or three years and furthermore that he had a popular man to run against.

He served as County Clerk for four years and after laying down the cares of office formed a law partnership with Frank H. Gould of Merced. The firm practiced law in Merced County with great success, and was only dissolved two years ago when McCabe accepted the invitation of Governor Budd to become his private secretary.

The circle of friends McCabe had in his home county has, in his last mentioned capacity, become widened, so as to include the whole State. There was never a better-liked official in the office of the Governor of California than he, and the popularity of the present administration has had a powerful aid through his personality. Courteous, possessed of sound reasoning powers and with a keen knowledge of men he made a most capable and efficient secretary to the Chief Executive, and only those who have been about the Capitol and therefore know the duties of the office can fully appreciate what such a record means.

Among his friends, Ed. McCabe is accounted a whole-souled gentleman. He is good-hearted to a fault, the soul of honor, a genial companion and with his ready wit and repartee is a charming conversationalist. Although a native son and still in the State he has been out of his shell, for he took a trip to Europe three years or so ago and ripened his knowledge with the experience and opportunities of the old world.

In politics he is a dyed-in-the-wool Democrat. His advice has always been sought in his party councils, and the high place he holds in the estimation of his political friends is shown by his constant selection to represent them at the polls. A ticket with Ed. McCabe's name on it has never been beaten, so that accounts a good deal for the prestige he bears wherever he lives.

During the Budd campaign he took the stump in the San Joaquin country, and as he is a ready talker, brimful of sound sense and with a knack of hitting the target every time, he did much to bring about the victory that perched on the Stockton man's banner. During the last campaign, too, his voice was heard in public, and one of the best speeches delivered at Sacramento during the political fray was the one he made at Oak Park just prior to election. It was widely quoted all over the State, for although almost extemporaneous it was bristling with telling points.

In his new sphere of State Librarian, McCabe will be at home. The surroundings are thoroughly congenial, for with the law library at his command he will have opportunities in the line of his profession that will reap him untold benefits. It is the boast of the Capitol that no one but a popular man ever sat in the State Librarian's chair, and the truth of this is recalled when the names of his immediate predecessors, Dr. Mathews and Dana Perkins, are considered. Ed. McCabe will bear worthily the mantle that has fallen on his shoulders, and throughout the State there will be expressions of satisfaction at his selection for so important an office. Just what his ambitions are no one knows but himself, but it is safe to say that if he ever comes to the front as a candidate at the polls for a State office the man who beats him will have to break all the records, for Ed. will do something in that line himself.

PETER J. SHIELDS.

Peter J. Shields is also a native son, for he was born in the very county in which he now resides. This happy event occurred in 1862, and Mr. Shields therefore pleads guilty to having participated in thirty-five summers and a like number of winters.

His early years were passed on a farm and his education was obtained in the various schools of Sacramento county. He graduated from each institution with an ease that gave great promise for the future, and having set his mind on being a lawyer he, at the age of seventeen, commenced to read Blackstone in the office of Judge A. P. Catlin. He did not have the benefits of any special legal course, yet he mastered his subject so well that when only twenty-one years old he stood the test of a Supreme Court examination and was admitted to practice in all the courts of the State.

A liberal offer made to him in the literary line prevented him from at once plunging absolutely into the business of his profession. He was offered and accepted the position of associate editor of the "American Decisions," a series of legal works published by Bancroft, Whitney & Co. His headquarters remained at Sacramento, and in addition to his literary labors he attended to the legal business that began to come to him.

His capacity to make friends was shown even in these early stages of his career, and while still a very young man he received public recognition for his services to the Democratic party by being appointed a trustee of the California State Library to serve with A. C. Freeman, Henry Edgerton, A. G. Booth and I. S. Belcher.

He was working too much though, and his health began to give way. It was hard to submit to the orders of the doctors who told him that he must for the time abandon his professional pursuits, but as the alternative might be the sacrifice of his life there was no choice in the matter. He laid down all that he had wrought and which was so promising and retired into private life.

The next eight years were devoted to a search for relief to his overtaxed energy, and following the advice of his physicians much of the time was given to agricultural pursuits. He went in for fruit-raising and breeding thoroughbred stock, trotting horses and Jersey cattle being his specialty. Like everything he did, this was done thoroughly and with such good results that he today owns one of the choicest herds of Jerseys in the United States. His opportunities for this kind of life were the fullest, for his parents owned, and still own, their Sacramento county farm, his mother having the distinction of being a member of the State Board of Trade.

His health mended slowly but surely, and by 1894 he had recovered enough to re-enter active life. He returned to the practice of law in Sacramento, but had scarcely got started before he was offered the position of Deputy State Librarian. He accepted and was engaged in that capacity when the Legislature of 1895 was in session. That was the time when the Code Commission was created, and when, a few weeks later, Governor Budd made his appointments, it was found that he had selected Peter Shields as the best man possible to attend to the onerous duties of secretary of the Commission.

The next two years, those preceding the recent session, were therefore passed by Shields in his new sphere. The place suited him and he suited the place, for the constant legal work it entailed not only proved a great educator for him, but also enabled him to bestow on his work the benefit of all his past studies. It soon became known that he was the key-note of the Commission, and the criticism that was levelled in some quarters on the Commissioners was never applied to him, for friends, opponents and all united in declaring him the brainy man of the Board. All the good that was accomplished by the Commission was brought about by him, and the personal observations Governor Budd was able to make convinced the Executive that Shields was the man he wanted in his office after Ed. McCabe had stepped out to assume the role of State Librarian.

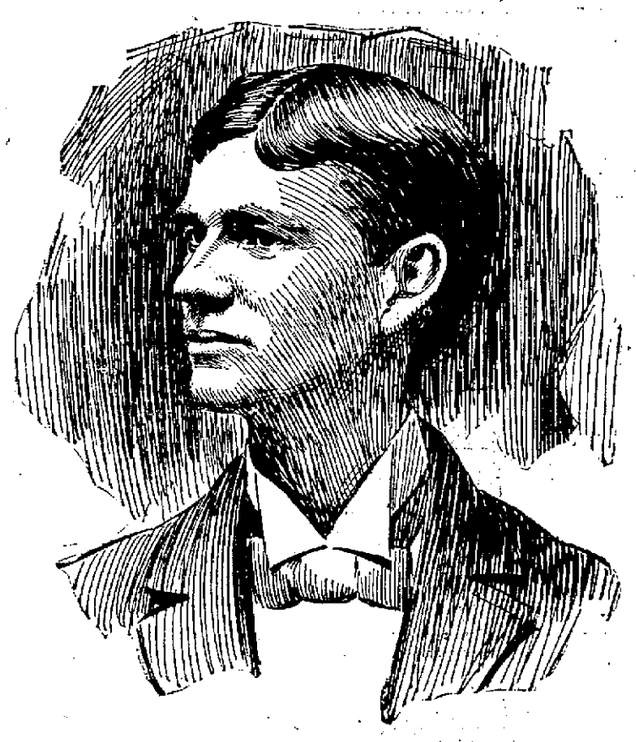
When therefore the changes were made the early part of this week Shields was promptly selected as the new private secretary, and in this position he is now firmly established in the Governors office.

It is pleasing to thus be able to record the success of a bright young man such as Peter J. Shields. He worked his way to the front by his own efforts and once he got there he quickly commanded attention, for the older politicians were not slow to discover that a new star was shining. Much of his advancement has been due to his personal friendships, for he quickly earns the lasting regard of those with whom he becomes associated.

"The highest ambition which survives me," he wrote in a letter to a friend the other day, and the sentiment was one which he was unconscious would ever receive publication, "is the desire to make warm friends and to deserve them. Pride of position can never take the place of the respect and esteem of the people whom I regard. I hope that in my new official life I shall be as successful in promoting personal friendships as I have in humbler stations."

There can be no question as to the result. One is bound to admire talent, and those who know Peter Shields are aware that he is brimful of it. He is too sensible a man to have his head turned by any passing success, and his unassuming, quiet, gentlemanly ways inspire a respect that soon engenders close friendships.

His opportunities in his new vocation to continue the career he has so ably begun are many, and that he will meet every requirement those who know him are certain. Governor Budd is the subject of congratulations for having so closely allied to his administration so popular and clever a young man, and everyone will join in wishing continued good-fortune to the new private secretary.



PETER J. SHIELDS, THE GOVERNOR'S NEW PRIVATE SECRETARY.

FIGHTING FOR THE ROAD.

Some of the Advantages of the Proposed New County Roads.

How the Tunnell Route Could Be Operated With the Adams Road.

The committee of seven appointed by the Merchants' Exchange Tuesday evening to urge the opening of the Adams-Kennedy road is already at work planning and discussing, though as yet, naturally, nothing definite has been outlined.

In considering the matter today, J. F. W. Sohst, chairman of the committee, said to a Tribune reporter:

"It will cost $5,000 to build the connecting link from Thorn Hill to the proposed Kennedy tunnel and put into repair the old Kennedy road up to the Adams road. The Adams road is in a good condition and the amount required to put it into perfect order is very small. The Contra Costa people who are opposed to the Summit road, are standing in their own light. If ever the tunnel shall be built it can only be done by bringing the people up there. At present, there are not 60 people out of 60,000 who have seen the mouth of the tunnell. With this proposed connection, 25,000 people would pass there within the next twelve months. The question then will be asked, Why can't we put a tunnel through this place which had already been surveyed and started twenty-five years ago, when the population of Oakland and Alameda County was only half of what it is today. If it were feasible then, it certainly is now. The distance of the mountain to be cut through is only 1,100 feet, 100 feet on each side can be an open cut. That would leave 800 feet of tunnel. The cost can't be so very much, but I would leave that to the engineers' estimate.

"There would be this advantage if the tunnel were built. People who want to go into Contra Costa County, would avoid the eighteen per cent grade which they have to go over now. Instead of bringing half a load into Oakland, they could bring a full load. To give a better idea of this condition of things, Oaklanders often have seen express wagons with six horses attached to it coming from Contra Costa, where two horses would accomplish the same work were the tunnel there.

"The summit road, therefore, would answer two purposes. It would give us the best mountain drive in the United States. People who are out for pleasure would not care to drive through a tunnel, and could enjoy a scenic drive of from twelve to fifteen miles in length. Farmers and business men could use the tunnel to commercial advantage. It would add 10,000 people to the population of Contra Costa County in a very short period, because it would be the principal connecting road between the two counties. The trade of that county would naturally come to Oakland. The best that could be made of the Fish Ranch road would be a ten per cent grade, and that at an expenditure of $30,000. Would it not then be better to have a five per cent grade with a tunnel for the same amount of money? The people who are opposing this project claim that the road will be much longer but it is proved that the difference will not be more than from a quarter to half a mile. They will then have a road that can be traversed twelve months of the year, instead of only nine months as now, and, besides avoid all the accidents which are now continually occurring.

"I talked with Mr. Buckley who has lived on the road for forty years, and he showed me a stiff right thumb and a stiff index finger, and I told him he was in luck to be still among the living after having lived on that road so long."

OFFICIAL BASEBALL.

Rival County and City Nines May Bring the Mayor in the Field.

A scheme is on foot to organize an opposition baseball team among the city and county officials. J. Cal Ewing will organize and manage the county team while Harry Thomas will look after the playing employees at the City Hall.

Some people think that the city will have the better of it as there are the Fire and Police Departments to draw from, whereas the county must confine itself to the two county buildings.

Nothing definite has yet been decided upon except that the Mayor will play short-stop for the city's, Treasurer Gilpin, Officer Rand and John Wild will probably compose the City's field.

When Mayor Thomas was Chief of Police he organized a team among his men, and challenged the Sheriff's office. A game was played and the police were beaten.

WON'T DO IN PATCHES

Chief Lloyd Expresses Himself on the Prohibition Question.

THE EFFECTS IN OAKLAND.

He Said It Would Have a Bad Effect on Business.

BRIMSTONE HARD TO MOVE.

A Letter From New York That Raises an Interesting Issue.

Chief of Police Lloyd has received the following letter from the editor of a New York prohibition journal:

"NEW YORK, April 15, 1897.

"To the Chief of Police, Oakland, Cal., Dear Sir:—For the benefit of our readers we respectfully request a brief expression of your views, based upon your observation and experience, upon these two topics:

First—What proportion of the business which comes to your department arise from the use or abuse of intoxicating liquor?

Second—What do you think would be the effect, so far as the work of the police department of your city is concerned, if all the saloons of your city were closed and liquor selling and liquor drinking should cease? If you could do the work of your department with a smaller force in such an event, how much smaller?

"We take occasion to thank you in advance for your favor. Respectfully,

"EDITOR OF THE VOICE."

THE CHIEF'S ANSWER.

In answer the Chief has sent the following:

"Dear Sir:—In answer to your communication of April 15th asking my views upon two topics named by yourself, both touching upon the liquor question, I would state:

"First—That no accurate estimate could be made of the proportion of police business arising from 'the use or abuse of intoxicating liquor,' as in many instances crime really originates from over-indulgence in liquor when no actual proof to that effect is at hand, and on the other hand, liquor is oftentimes apparently the cause of the commission of crime when it really has nothing to do with it. I speak now of what we class as misdemeanors and minor crimes. Every year there are more people arrested for drunkenness than for any other ten crimes, yet the police force has less trouble with the drunkard than with any other criminal. In this city in 1896, out of 3,065 arrests, 1216 were plain drunks. There were 170 cases of battery, many of which were due to liquor; 157 cases of disturbing the peace and 16 cases of assault with a deadly weapon, which crimes are also often attributable to liquor, yet the department was kept in a constant state of confusion for nearly a month by two beardless boys who were looting this town almost nightly. Therefore, while I realize the great harm growing out of over-indulgence in intoxicating liquor, I am not prepared to admit that a great amount of police business is the result of that evil. A great many of the most hardened, desperate and dangerous criminals that we have seldom use intoxicating liquor to excess, and hence I cannot see that the absence of the open saloon would materially change the status of police business. In fact I am of the opinion that the great majority of dangerous criminals whose operations render large police forces necessary, are the direct outgrowth of our unnatural social and economic conditions that breed poverty, want and despair in the human heart. That men out of employment and unable to secure the necessities of life in this land of plenty, is the first cause of a much larger percentage of criminality than is the liquor evil. That it is man's inhumanity to man and our government's partnership in that inhumanity, rather than man's insobriety, that demands a large police force in every city. This is the opinion of your humble servant, and I have never been accused of being friendly to rum.

"Second—The effect in Oakland if all the saloons were to be closed would be that our business would be ruined, grass would, metaphorically speaking, grow in the doorways of our business houses, and neither drunkenness nor police business would decrease, for the simple reason that those who wanted liquor would get it in unbroken packages, or would cross over to San Francisco, or go to Berkeley or Alameda, our nearest neighbors, buy their liquor there and come back to Oakland to raise hell. Prohibition in patches will never do anything but harm to the particular patch worked upon. If the reform could become general, there might ultimately be less demand for large numbers of policemen in all our cities, but it would require time to change people's dispositions, or rather to work the brimstone out of their systems. Until economic conditions are bettered I am of the opinion that there will be little improvement in our criminal record, no matter how much prohibition in patches may be applied to liquor. I repeat that want and misery caused by unnatural conditions is a greater pregenitor of crime than liquor in my opinion. Yours very respectfully,

"C. E. LLOYD,
Chief of Police."

LAST OF EARTH.

The Remains of Mrs. H. E. Hall Borne to Mountain View.

The funeral of the late Mrs. H. E. Hall took place yesterday afternoon from the First Presbyterian Church and was attended by a large number of relatives, as also of friends who had known and revered the deceased through life. The coffin was covered with fresh and beautiful flowers, the aroma of which pervaded the apartment, a grateful reminder of the sweetness and gentleness of the life that had passed away. The services were very simple in accordance with the well known wishes of the deceased. There were several concerted pieces rendered by the choir in a very effective manner after the burial service was read by Dr. Coyle, who improved the opportunity to deliver a touching tribute to the worth and services of the deceased.

At the close of the exercises, the remains were tenderly borne from the church and laid away in Mountain View Cemetery.

A THRILLING PIECE.

"For Fair Virginia" Is Warmly Applauded at the Macdonough.

An excellent performance of For Fair Virginia was given at the Macdonough Theater last evening. The play is one of the most successful war dramas that has ever been written, and has been most carefully and attractively staged. While the scenes are laid in the time of the civil war, there is nothing hackneyed in the treatment of the theme. Many of the situations are novel and decidedly interesting. One of the strongest scenes of the play is that at the end of the first act, where Edward Esmond, "a Southern Yankee," married to a Virginia girl, feels it to be his duty to forsake his wife and boy to fight on the side of the Union. The fiery words of the Southern wife, as she rends the ties between them, and dedicates her broken life and lacerated heart to Fair Virginia, are characteristic and thrilled one's heart by the idea of the deep, but hopeless, patriotism they conveyed.

The scene was intensified by the parting of Esmond from his infant son Julian. Each succeeding act strengthens the slowly unfolding plot, and the last acts finds the plucky Yankee in the arms of a vanquished but happy "Johnny," and the Southern heroine safe in the shelter of her loving husband's arms.

Mrs. Whytal was the fetching Yankee girl and immediately found favor with her audience. Her action is spontaneous by nature and her graceful presence lent much to the many pretty scenes in which she was the central figure."

For Fair Virginia will be given its last performance in this city tonight.

J. C. CARLSON INJURED.

J. C. Carlson, formerly manager of the Galindo Hotel, was injured in jumping off the Narrow Gauge train last evening. Mr. Carlson lives at Fourteenth and Webster streets, and desired to get off the train at Webster instead of going down to the station to avoid the longer walk.

Just as he was about to alight, his overcoat slipped from his arm. He made a grab for the coat and missed his footing. Mr. Carlson fell and plowed a furrow in the street, a couple of yards long with his chin and severely strained his shoulder. It was thought last night that the accident might prove serious, but the gentleman was able to go about his duties this morning, although considerably shaken up.

WANT SANITARY LAUNDRIES

The Board of Health Wishes Reforms in the Wash-Houses.

Outside Lavatories Must Be Able to Show a "Clean Bill."

The Sanitary Inspectors have about finished their inspections of the Chinese wash-houses in the city, and when the work is completed Dr. Bradley and Secretary Schafer will commence on the ordinance which the Board of Health instructed them to draw, regulating the care of laundered clothes.

Among other things the ordinance will probably include a clause pertaining to clothes washed outside the city. This will make it necessary for people who do washing outside of the city to secure cerificates from the Health Boards of their respective districts, certifying to the sanitary conditions of their respective laundries.

Inspector Ott states that the wash-houses in Oakland have comparatively clean wash-rooms, of Chinamen, but that the sleeping apartments are frightfully filthy. A great many of the wash-rooms have cement floors and it will probably be recommended that such floors shall be laid in all of them.

Mr. Ott further states that the spraying with the mouth is being stopped, most of the Chinamen having secured whisk brooms for the purpose.

MAY DIE IN HARNESS

Justice Field's Colleagues Think He Will Not Retire.

THE PROSPECTS FOR M'KENNA

Judge Day of Canton in Line for a Cabinet Vacancy.

M'KINLEY IS "SAWING WOOD"

Speculation on the Status of the Expected Changes.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

CHICAGO, April 23.—A special to the Times-Herald from Washington, D. C., says:

Although President McKinley has made no disclosures concerning the matter, so far as is known, there is an understanding that when the first vacancy occurs upon the Supreme bench Attorney-General McKenna will be appointed to a place upon the court and Judge William R. Day of Canton, O., will be his successor.

Judge Day was one of Major McKinley's first choices for a seat in the Cabinet, but Mr. Day, who is responsible to the heirs of his wife's father for the management of their estate, which has for some time been in anything but a satisfactory condition, did not feel that he could take either this post or that of Solicitor-General, which he was also urged to accept.

It is well known that Attorney-General McKenna prefers to be upon the bench, and now that Judge Day has succeeded in relieving himself of a large part of the responsibility concerning the property committed to his care in Canton, it is believed he will be willing to become a member of the McKinley Administration.

McKenna, it has been remarked, goes to the Supreme Court every decision day and listens carefully to the proceedings. Among his intimate friends there is an understanding that he expects to go on the bench within a year or two in case there should be a vacancy.

Whether or not Justice Field will be willing to retire next August, when his term of service will exceed that of Chief Justice Marshall, remains to be seen. Among his colleagues on the bench there is a belief that Justice Field has no intention of retiring and that he will die in the harness.

PARTING WORDS.

Very Interesting Addresses at the Theological Seminary Dinner.

About fifty guests were present at the Pacific Theological Seminary dinner following the graduating exercises of yesterday afternoon.

At its close Dr. McLean spoke on the work of the Seminary Faculty, and the training of a worker in Christian fields. He called attention to the necessity of a minister's broadening his views and education beyond simple pulpit work, and towards this end, suggested a course of general study in connection with that of the usual seminary work. The seminary was in position to instruct those who desired to enter upon Christian Endeavor, Sunday school and mission work, as well as those for the ministry, and financially, was in a splendid condition.

The subjects and speakers who followed were Mr. Frear, who spoke on "The Trustees' Stake;" Rev. L. L. Wirt, "Alumni and Alma Mater;" Professor Langden of San Anselmo, "Seminary Fraternity;" Professor Shaw of Stanford, "Churches and Seminary;" Prof. Bradley, "University and Seminary;" President Martin Kellogg of the State University, "The Seminary in Education." Rev. Mr. Knodell of the Pilgrim Congregational Church, East Oakland, delivered the closing address.

MORSE CONFESSES.

Richard Morse, who forged an endorsement to a postal money order, has been brought from Los Angeles to San Francisco, and has confessed his crime. Morse intercepted a letter containing a $25 money order addressed to Fred W. Appleby of this city, at the general delivery in San Francisco. He had the San Francisco authorities forward the order to Oakland, where, by identification of a bartender named Frank Roach, the order was cashed. He has already repaid Appleby.

OAKLAND'S DELEGATES.

Mayor W. R. Thomas has appointed as delegates to the Pure Food Congress which convenes in San Francisco on April 30th, W. S. Merriam, N. A. Koser, C. M. Plumb, Fred Becker, G. O. Sanborn, Dr. W. J. Wilcox, H. D. Cushing, Fred Sinclair, J. R. Talcott and J. W. Nelson.

A Council Committee.

There will be a meeting of the Finance Committee of the City Council this evening. It is said that some action will be taken toward a general cutting of salaries of city officials, but it is thought unlikely that anything will come out of it.

Collecting Taxes.

Yesterday was the busiest day the Tax Collectors have had. Over $15,000 was taken in, leaving something over $45,000 yet to be collected. Today has been quieter.

Councilman Cuvellier's Ideas on the Annexation Publication.

THE "NEWS" IS QUESTIONED

Editor Travers Willing to Withdraw if so Desired.

HIS SPIRIT IS COMMENDED

No Chances Should Be Taken on an Important Matter.

Councilman Cuvellier has a word or two to say concerning the publication of the annexation election in the Emeryville News.

"All this muddle the Council has gotten into is the result of hasty legislation, and of the manner we have fallen into of rushing measures through with a whoop and a hurrah," he said to a Tribune man to-day. "This constant suspension of the rules is a most pernicious practice, and if it is not stopped it is going to land us all in a big hole some day, and then we will be sorry too late.

"I must say, however, that in the instance of this annexation proclamation some of the members of the annexation committee are to blame for its being hurried through as it has been. But that is no excuse for us.

"The other evening when in the Council there arose some question as to the legal standing of the Emeryville News, it was I who asked that Mr. Travers, the proprietor of that paper, be put under oath, and after he was sworn I asked him these three questions, which he answered affirmatively: 'Has your paper been established fully six months?' 'Has it appeared regularly weekly during that time?' 'Have you a bona fide subscription list?' Councilman Floush and President Pringle also questioned him, and his answers were in the affirmative. The majority of the Council voted to publish the proclamation in the Emeryville News.

"Later on I got to thinking the matter over, and upon investigation and an interview with Mr. Travers, I found that the editorial and reportorial work of the paper seems to have been done sometimes in Oakland, sometimes in Alameda, that the printing of the News has been done sometimes in Alameda, sometimes in Oakland and is now being done in Berkeley. When printed the paper is simply distributed in Emeryville. It was only about a week ago that Mr. Travers rented a room in Emeryville, so as to have an office there. Taking all things into consideration, I do not consider the Emeryville News an Emeryville publication, and from the fact that part of the work on the paper is done in Oakland, I do not consider that the News is in the full sense of the law a paper published and printed outside of Oakland.

"Mr. Travers does not agree with me on that point," continued Mr. Cuvellier, "and I believe that he is perfectly sincere in his conviction that the publication of the annexation ordinance in his paper would be perfectly legal. I have my doubts about it, and I think the City Council should run no chances in the matter.

"I have talked this subject over with some of the Councilmen, and when we have our next regular meeting Monday, the 3rd of May, some of us will move to strike out the name of the Emeryville News and to substitute the name of some other paper. It will also probably be necessary to change the date of the election to the 10th of June, so as to have the ordinance published four times in the outside weekly paper which may be selected.

"I hope that this time the various papers offering to publish the annexation ordinance will be papers having an established office, where all the business, printing and circulating of the paper is carried on in one town, and that they will be bona fide newspapers, registered at the post office as second class mail matter and having a subscription list of bona fide paying subscribers. We cannot afford to take any chances of spending several thousand dollars of the city's money for an annexation election which might afterward be declared null and void on account of some little legal technicality.

"Notwithstanding that Mr. Travers considers that he is in the right," Mr. Cuvellier concluded, "still I find him disposed to agree to whatever may be for the best interests of the city, and he told me last evening that if any of us Councilmen thought for a minute that the publication of the ordinance in the Emeryville News might jeopardize the result of the election he would gladly make any sacrifice of his individual interests and willingly see some other paper substituted in the place of his own. This proves Mr. Travers to be a public spirited young man and will win for him the further esteem and good will of the Councilmen who stood by him when they thought that he was in the right."

THE VARGAS DIVORCE.

A Very Lively Suit on Trial in Judge Ellsworth's Court.

The divorce case of Louisa Vargas against her husband Joseph packed Judge Ellsworth's court room this morning with a lobby of men. The testimony in the case is the raciest produced in a divorce case for some time, but it is hardly fit to be printed. The wife seeks the separation on the ground of extreme cruelty, while the husband has entered a cross-complaint of adultery.

The wife testified this morning that her husband had often threatened to do her bodily harm, and on one occasion, after a quarrel, he had tried to brain her with a chair.

Attorneys Chapman and Walsh represent the husband, while A. A. Moore and Robert Edgar represent the wife.

MRS. PRICE AGAIN.

She Is Still in the Business of Attempting Suicide.

NOW SURPRISING NEW ORLEANS

Faithfully Repeating the Story She Told Sheriff White.

AGAIN JUMPS OFF A BRIDGE.

Of Course She Is Rescued and Help Is Generously Extended.

Mrs. Laura Price, as she was known in Oakland is certainly a very remarkable young woman. She is going over the entire country and soliciting sympathy in different cities by pretending to commit suicide.

The most peculiar circumstance in connection with her escapades is that she always attempts to take her life in the same manner. She waits till a big crowd is on some bridge, then with a heartrendering yell she jumps into the cruel water and——is saved.

While passing through Haywards, Mrs. Price tried to jump into the creek, but a constable was at hand and she was rescued. She was brought to the County Jail and enlisted Sheriff White's sympathy until he found that his guest had done the same thing at Redlands, Watsonville, Salinas and a dozen other towns and then she was discharged.

Now she has turned up at New Orleans and her story of youthful marriage, desertion, circus-riding is exactly the same as that told all over the coast. The only change she has made is in her name. At New Orleans she said she is Mrs. Maud Virginia Ballard.

The Daily Item of New Orleans of last Friday prints the following story of the girl:

"This afternoon shortly after 10 o'clock the actions of a young woman who evidently courted death, created considerable excitement on the Old Basin in the vicinity of Dorgenois street. The woman appeared to be in great distress for she several times attempted to mount the barriers that separated her from the water of the canal. A crowd of curious and noisy youngsters followed in her wake and every time she tried to climb over a pile of lumber for the purpose of precipitating herself into the basin, they cried to her to desist.

"When the young woman reached a point between Broad and Dorgenois streets her actions were observed by three young men named Dan Reehlmann, Joseph Walle, and J. Kelly. When these parties saw the sufferer she was approaching a cleared spot and was trying to throw herself into the basin. They lost no time in reaching her side, and removing her to a place of safety.

She told a terrible story of misfortune and desertion, and as Kelly and his friends did not know what to do for her they concluded to take her to the office of Chief Gaster.

"When police headquarters were reached she told Chief Gaster that her name was Maud Virginia Ballard, and that she is a circus performer by occupation. Her repeated attempts at self-destruction, she declared were due to financial distress and to the fact that her husband deserted her. She stated that she has been a circus performer since she was 9 years of age, and she is now 24. She was married in New York City at the age of 13 to Frank Ballard, a trapeze artist. Her maiden name was Maud Virginia Creagh, and her mother keeps a boarding house in Gotham at the present time.

Mrs. Ballard stated that she traveled around the country with her husband, and until five months ago, when he cruelly deserted her and left her to earn her living alone. The separation occurred in Oregon City, near Portland, Oregon. Mrs. Ballard declared that no act of hers induced her husband to leave her. He was advised to desert her by another woman and followed the advice. She made her way from Oregon City to San Francisco and finally came to New Orleans, reaching here only this morning. She declared that she had not a cent in the world and lived while on the road on the sympathetic-hearted. She sometimes walked the tracks and sometimes begged a ride from the trainmen.

"When she reached here this morning she was on the verge of starvation and when she found that there was nothing before her but suffering she determined to jump into the basin and end her troubles. She says that she has three children, the oldest of which is 11 years. They are now in this city somewhere, with her sister-in-law, but she does not know where. She would not give the name of her sister-in-law. Mrs. Ballard stated that before leaving her, her husband gambled away over $400 of her money.

"Mrs. Ballard also stated that she has epileptic fits, which prevent her from taking a position in any circus. The fits were brought on by an accident which she witnessed several years ago.

"The woman was placed in the first precinct station. She will be turned over to Dr. Clay this afternoon."

WILL NOT FIGHT.

Mr. McChesney Does Not Fear the Recent Fraternity Amendment.

The attitude of the fraternity element of the High School in introducing the amendment to take the supervision of Aegis nominations out of the hands of the faculty, has caused some people to think that things looked a little like rebellion.

Principal McChesney, however, rather laughs at the idea of any trouble resulting, and believes that the amendment will die a natural death. It hardly stands within reason that any attempt will be made by the fraternity element to carry the amendment in the face of the faculty's disapproval.

Thin Children

ONE SATISFACTION in giving Scott's Emulsion to children is they never object to it. The fact is they soon become fond of it. Another satisfaction, is because it will make them plump, and give them growth and prosperity. It should be given to all children who are too thin, or too pale.

TOO MANY INSANE.

Work for the Commission Created by the Last Legislature.

THE CARE OF STATE ASYLUMS.

Tax-Payers Burdened With the Work of Keeping Them Up.

THE VIEWS OF DR. WOOLSEY.

How the Extension of Insanity Ought at Once to Be Prevented.

The views of Dr. E. H. Woolsey on the subject of the treatment of insane patients, which he expressed at the meeting of the California Medical Society two days ago have occasioned considerable talk in medical circles in this city.

Dr. Woolsey was interviewed by a Tribune reporter today in reference to the question, and opened the conversation by referring to the paper on the care of the insane by Dr. Gardner of the Napa Insane Asylum.

"The citizens of this State," he said, "and the profession are to be congratulated upon the enactment of the bill which Dr. Gardner had considered—a bill for the establishment of a commission to supervise and regulate all of the asylums of the State and all matters pertaining to the examining and committment of the insane.

"That there is need of a more systematic method of dealing with the insane there can be no question, and it is evident that some measure is necessary, when Dr. Gardner espoused the cause, he being at the head of the largest asylum.

"Dr. Gardner has considered at some length the matter of sentiment as to length the matter of sentiment as to pending examination and committment to asylums, and suggests that it will be the purpose of the commission to regulate such matters, and perhaps furnish special accommodations for those suspected of insanity. This will increase the expense of dealing with these people, which is already too great, and has come to be a grievous burden upon the tax-payers—upon the sane taxpayers of the State.

MEDICAL SPECIALISTS.

"It is a tendency in medicine for specialists to concentrate more and more their attention to their particular specialisms. The oculist comes to forget that systemic disturbances effect the eye, and so it is a singular fact that those who are concerned in the care of the insane, and, I may add, those who are devoted to other eleemosinary institutions, come to consider that the wheels of government and all of the industrial activities of a people should move toward the special end of caring for the inmates under their supervision.

"If this commission shall regulate insane asylums of this State so as to economize the management and lessen the burdens of the tax-payer, and stop the increase of insanity, it will do a service to California and to humanity.

"At the present rate of increase of insanity in this State, it is only a question of time, and a not very distant time at that, when the insane will so far outnumber the sane that instead of providing asylums for the insane they will have to be turned at large and the sane people establish asylums for their own protection. This is the psychological view of this question. The financial view is that the sane people of this State will not much longer be able to provide food and care for the insane.

PREVENTING INSANITY.

"Some thing ought to be done to arrest the progress of insanity. Victoria C. Woodhull, a few years ago, had the courage to suggest that those who were committed to the insane asylums should be surgically operated upon in such a way as to prevent the possibility of their procreating their kind. This, I submit, is the only certain way of dealing with this question. It is in the interests of humanity and in the interests of the State that this commission or the government should adopt this means. If a man or woman who has become insane to the extent of committment to an asylum shall recover to the extent of being discharged therefrom, and then have offspring, the child will almost certainly inherit an unstable nervous organization, and if it does not become insane it will have some form of neurosis, and be yet liable to transmit insanity to its offspring.

NECESSARY LEGISLATION.

"Boards of Health with advanced ideas are creating ordinances to prevent expectoration on the public streets and for the avoidance of other dangers of infection, and a wise provision would be to prevent consumptives from marrying; and, strictly in line with such efforts, would be the rational and certain prevention of the increase of insanity suggested."

"Dr. Gardener has criticised county examiners of the insane specifically for filling out one answer of a blank that a person has not exhibited any homicidal or suicidal evidence, and yet in another answer, expressing the opinion that the individual was dangerous to be at large. He has characterized such conclusions as absurd.

"Now, while I have great deference for Dr. Gardner's opinions on questions pertaining to the insane, I submit that his criticism may not be altogether fair because if a man not a contortionist nor a circus performer, were, while walking along a public thoroughfare—down Market street, for instance in San Francisco—should suddenly become inverted and in the midst of passers-by stand on his head, there is every reason to believe that such a man, notwithstanding the fact that he had never tried to kill anybody nor himself, might suddenly become imbued with such a notion, and it would not be safe to have him at large."
